

Talk Peace or Fight in April, Egyptians Say

Not the Father?

A bizarre case of mistaken identity was discovered in an Outagamie County courtroom Friday when the plaintiff in a paternity case looked at the defendant and declared he wasn't the man who fathered her child.

The 19-year-old Appleton mother signed a complaint against a 23-year-old man who stood ready to answer to the charge before County Judge Nick F. Schaefer.

But when she saw him, she walked up to Asst. Dist. Atty. Joel Seymour, tugged at his arm and whispered, "he's not the man." Seymour asked Schaefer for a recess. They and the defense attorney met in chambers.

The real father, it seems, had identified himself to the girl at a Marinette motel last summer using the name of the man who appeared in court.

He said he was a cigarette salesman from Green Bay. The man in court lives in Green Bay and sells cigarettes. The real father's car was laden with boxes of cigarettes, the girl recalled. The 23-year-old man carries samples.

Schaefer dismissed the case after the girl testified under oath she had never seen the man before.

"It was the first time we could get them together in the same room," Seymour said later. Asked afterwards what he thought of it, the former defendant, who is married, replied dumbfoundedly, "What would anybody think?"

Wallace at Rally

Army Chief Backs Calley Prosecution

Public outpourings of support for Lt. William L. Calley Jr. has continued but the Army and Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland have defended the prosecution and conviction of the soldier for his role in the My Lai massacre of 1968.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace met with Calley at Ft. Benning, Ga., and later attended a rally with Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox at nearby Columbus. Wallace said he believes "President Nixon is going to do the right thing and... grant clemency Lt. Calley."

Westmoreland, however, told a news conference in Houston, Tex. "I feel no guilt, not in the least. It is an absurd allegation." The Army chief of staff, who commanded U.S. troops in Vietnam at the time of the massacre, said, "it was clearly known by our troops in Vietnam that they were to avoid civilian casualties at all costs."

"My orders were that all atrocities would be reported and investigated according to the rules of the Geneva Convention, and it is our obligation to follow through and punish those atrocities."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS President Anwar Sadat of Egypt warned today that fighting will be resumed along the Suez Canal by the end of this month unless Israel responds to his latest peace proposal, the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram reported.

It quoted Sadat as saying April "is the month which shall decide between a solution and war" and reported he wants all parties, including the United States and the United Nations, to "define within this month their position in practical and precise terms."

The report came barely a day after Sadat offered a new version of his Feb. 4 proposal to reopen the Suez Canal if Israel made a partial withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula. Sadat also said Egypt would agree to renew the suspended cease-fire if Israel accepted his terms.

Divided Reaction Israeli reaction to the proposal was divided. One government minister characterized it as absurd while another said it merited discussion.

A new element in Sadat's proposal called for Egyptian troops to take up positions on the east bank of the canal to supervise clearance work on the Canal after the Israeli pull-back. Egypt also offered for the first time to accept "practical arrangements for separating hostile forces" during this period.

The newspaper asserted that the Sadat initiative had no direct connection with a message Sadat received from President Nixon a few hours before his announcement. The Egyptian statement was prepared days ago as "a clear and categorical definition" of Egypt's final stand, the paper said.

Links Proposal Al-Ahram said Sadat links his partial withdrawal proposal directly with the Security Council resolution of Nov. 28, 1967, and U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring's plan of Feb. 8 this year outlining procedures for an Israeli-Egyptian settlement.

The resolution called for reaching a settlement by June 30, 1971.

Funds for Schools

Integration Bill Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise $1.5 billion school desegregation aid bill worked out over dinner at a senator's Washington home has been accepted by the Senate Labor Committee.

The money is the sum asked for by President Nixon, but the diners added some tough limitations on the use of the funds. The committee voted 14 to 0 Friday to accept the compromise.

The table negotiations took place recently at the home of Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., with Secretary of Health Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson and Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland representing the administration.

Original Provisions What the administration agreed to were several provisions originally included in a bill introduced by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., as a substitute for the President's proposal.

Satchmo Is Critical After New Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Jazz immortal Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong remained hospitalized in critical condition early today, suffering from recurrent heart and respiratory ailments, according to his manager, Ira Mangel.

A spokesman at Beth Israel Hospital said Friday the 70-year-old jazz trumpeter had "marked difficulty" in breathing, and was in a mechanical respirator in the intensive care unit of the hospital. Armstrong was admitted to the hospital March 15.

The spokesman said Armstrong's latest trouble began Thursday night, when he developed respiratory difficulty and was "weakened generally."

Armstrong developed a pulmonary infection March 24, and underwent a tracheotomy to improve his breathing. Last week, he reportedly had improved until he could sit up, take nourishment and joke with the hospital staff.

As negotiated, the bill provides for $500 million in the next fiscal year and $1 billion the following year, but with tight restrictions on how local school districts can spend the money: earmarking of some funds for specific uses and a requirement that the funds be used to develop quality, integrated schools rather than just for aiding in desegregation.

In turn, Mondale dropped a proposal that racially isolated schools get no money. The administration originally wanted fewer restrictions with more discretion left to the local units and the commissioner of education.

Pell, chairman of the subcommittee that worked on the bill, said the Senate should pass the bill later this month.

Other details of the bill: Fifteen per cent of the aid will go to metropolitan area programs, including two large education parks; 3 per cent to children's TV programs that promote integration; 3 per cent for developing bilingual projects; 9 per cent for use at the discretion of the education commissioner and 2 per cent for administrative costs.

The rest of the money—68 per cent—will be divided among the states in proportion to their number of minority group children. Each state, however, is guaranteed at least $100,000.

To qualify for the money, districts must agree to build at least one permanent integrated school as well as come up with a plan to eliminate or cut down racial isolation in all facilities.

900 Enemy Die in Battle

N. Vietnamese Regiment Reported 'Out of Action'

SAIGON (AP) — Savage new fighting erupted in the jungled mountains of South Vietnam's central highlands and the South Vietnamese claimed today they killed 900 North Vietnamese regulars in a six-hour battle.

The fresh fighting broke out Friday around Firebase No. 6, the South Vietnamese artillery outpost near the Laotian border which the South Vietnamese lost Wednesday and reoccupied on Thursday.

When the new fighting ended at nightfall Friday, the South Vietnamese claimed they had decimated the North Vietnamese 28th Regiment and were still in possession of the base.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said 350 North Vietnamese were killed by the defending South Vietnamese infantrymen at Firebase No. 6 and another 550 Hanoi troops were killed by American and South Vietnamese air strikes and artillery bombardments.

The spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hein, said South Vietnamese casualties were 41 killed and 57 wounded. The fighting erupted at noon and broke when, Hein said, the North Vietnamese withdrew.

Hein claimed that in the three days of the battle for the firebase 1,180 North Vietnamese had been killed and that over-all government losses were 61 killed and 82 wounded. Reliable military sources, however, said the South Vietnamese suffered more than 200 dead or wounded in the first two days alone.

'Out of Action' "We can say," Hein told correspondents at the daily military briefing, "that the 28th NVA Regiment has been put out of action."

The regiment, a seasoned outfit which has long operated in the highlands, had an estimated strength of more than 2,000 men. Many of them were veterans of the 1963 siege at Ben Het.

The North Vietnamese first assaulted the firebase at dawn Wednesday, storming the hilltop artillery base behind heavy rocket and recoilless rifle fire.

They drove out the two defending companies of South Vietnamese infantry and artillerymen, who later linked up with reinforcements and deployed for a counter-attack.

The South Vietnamese reoccupied the base late Thursday without resistance after the North Vietnamese had pulled out. The Hanoi force returned to the attack at noon Friday, any civil office under the aegis reported, and six hours of the United States intensive fighting ensued. By this time, increased U.S. and pre-aid civil office as including South Vietnamese air and artillery support had been thrown into the engagement.

In another action, North Vietnamese gun crews rained a 100-round mortar barrage on the fire-ravaged town of Duc Duc, but inflicted few casualties.

Saigon military spokesmen said the shells hit in the early morning darkness and unofficial reports placed the toll at one dead and four wounded.

Duc Duc was devastated earlier this week by a heavy enemy rocket and ground assault that killed 100 civilians and wounded 150. Nearly 2,000 of the town's 16,000 residents were left homeless.

The small district capital is located 25 miles southwest of Da Nang in the northern part of the country.

In a report from Hanoi's official news agency, Viet Cong forces claimed they had killed or wounded more than 1,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops in attacks on 100 positions in South Vietnam last week.

Lawmakers Can't Hold Commissions

U.S. Judge Rules On Membership In Reserve, Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen and senators will no longer be able to hold commissions in the reserves or National Guard, a federal judge has ruled.

In a decision issued Friday, District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said the separation of powers concept of the Constitution backed up by a 1916 House Judiciary Committee finding rules out the dual legislative-military role.

In moving against a tradition that once included a reserve until just for members of Congress, the judge managed to sidestep what could have been a touchy problem. He didn't rule that members of Congress now holding military commissions must give them up.

Anticipating appeals probably to the Supreme Court, Gesell said, "If the issue of incompatibility is finally determined on appeal consistent with this decision, there is no reason to believe that Congress and the executive will be unable to accommodate themselves voluntarily to the decision."

There are 119 senators and representatives currently holding military commissions. Gesell cited from a clause in the Constitution which reads, "No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected be appointed to any civil office under the United States."

The judge said he interpreted this time, increased U.S. and pre-aid civil office as including South Vietnamese air and artillery support had been thrown into the engagement.

In another action, North Vietnamese gun crews rained a 100-round mortar barrage on the fire-ravaged town of Duc Duc, but inflicted few casualties.

Saigon military spokesmen said the shells hit in the early morning darkness and unofficial reports placed the toll at one dead and four wounded.

'God Is Rich, a Magician,'

NEW YORK (AP) — Ask a child who God is, and you're apt to get some odd answers, such as: "He gives parties." "A ghost." "A millionaire." "A magician." "The smartest person in the world." "Me."

These were some of the responses received by a Daytona Beach, Fla., couple, Edward and Elizabeth Fox, in interviewing children, 5 to 7 years old, about their religious concepts. "Above all else, the one thing we learned was that to most children, God, though mystifying, is very real and very important," they say. They report the varying, often touching or funny remarks of the youngsters in a new book issued by Doubleday called "Christ is God's Middle Name" — a line taken from a comment by a little girl.

Few Excerpts
Here are a few excerpts of questions, and the children's answers:

Linda: "He's a king. He looks like a hippie." How does he look like a hippie? "He has whiskers." What else? "He wears dresses." Like your mother's? "No. My mother wears minis, and his go all the way down to the ground."

Jummy: "I don't know." Does anyone know? "Yes, the astronauts who went to the moon." How do they know? "They saw him." Then why didn't they take pictures of him? "They did." Has anyone seen the pictures? "Yes." Who? "The President." Why no one else? "It's secret information."

Pete: "He's against the devil... they fight all the

141st Mormon Conference Starts Sunday

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — The Mormon Tabernacle Choir will once again highlight the telecast of the World Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, through Wednesday.

(Fox Valley viewers will be able to see an hour telecast from 9 to 10 a.m. Sunday over Channel 5).

Joseph Fielding Smith, 94-year-old president of the Church, will be in charge of the event, which marks the 141st anniversary of the organization of the Mormons. Growth marks the observance. Membership is expected to pass the 3 million mark this year. During 1970, 41 new states (dioceses) were organized, bringing the total to 537.

The building program also is continuing to grow. Three new temples will be completed by 1973 and the $30 million church office building in Salt Lake City will be ready for occupancy in 1972. In addition there are 300 other buildings throughout the world under construction and more on the drawing boards. Speakers for the convention will be general officers of the church, including Harold B. Lee and N. Eldon Tanner, counselors to President Smith. In addition to the growth conferences, special meetings will be held by the primary association, which supervises weekday activities of children of the church and the Sunday school organization.

Missionaries to Speak At Foursquare Sunday
The Rev. and Mrs. Walter Mussen, missionaries to the Orient, will be special guest speakers at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Appleton Foursquare church. The Mussens will relate their work and experiences in the mission field, according to the Rev. Gerald D. Gulick, pastor.

"time." Where? "In people." Do they ever fight in you Pete? "Yes." How do you know? "I can feel it." Billy: "Clouds." What kind of clouds? "The big ones like castles." They're God? "Not the clouds themselves." What are? "The faces." The faces in the clouds? "Yes." Each one you see is God? "Yes." That makes a lot of Gods doesn't it? "No, it's the same God. He just makes different faces."

In His Image
Joan: "He's me." You're God? "Sort of... I'm like him." Like him? "I mean I was born like him." How? "In his image." Do you know what image means? "My mother says it's what you see when you look in a mirror." What do you see? "Me." And God, Joan? "I couldn't." Why couldn't you? "Because He's a man and I'm a girl."

Joe: "The man in heaven I pray to." What kind of prayers? "I ask for things." What things? "Right now I'm praying for a new bike." What else? "Muscles." Why muscles? "So I can beat up Chick Lowry."

Nancy: "A spirit." What does He do? "Everything... He runs the world." How? "He makes it work." Does He ever do bad things? "No." What about making things die? "That's not really bad." Why not? "Because people don't die forever." Eddie: "I can talk to Him." What do you talk to Him about? "He helps me in my school work." How does He help? "When I don't know the answer to a question, I ask Him." And He tells you? "No." Why not? "I can talk to Him but He can't talk to me." Then how does He give you the answer? "He puts it into my head."

ognition of Israeli sovereignty within secure borders and a withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied Arab lands. Jarzings's proposals also called for a pullback by Israel.

Information Minister Israel Galili, a close associate of Premier Golda Meir, indicated in a radio interview in Tel Aviv that Israel would reject Sadat's proposal.

Partial Treaty
But Deputy Premier Yigal Allon told a meeting of journalists in Tel Aviv that his government should be ready to discuss a partial treaty for the canal.

Israel's Foreign Ministry said Israel was ready to hold "serious discussions" on the canal, as well as on other issues linked to the deadlocked Israeli-Arab negotiations in New York under Jarring.

Washington officials said the United States was expected to advise Israel not to reject Egypt's proposals out of hand, but that no pressure would be brought to bear.

The Egyptian offer is regarded in Washington as a possible means to end the Middle East stalemate and bring both sides back to the negotiations through Jarring.

However, U.N. diplomatic sources said Israel would want the United States rather than Jarring to act as intermediary in any talks about reopening the canal. They expected the Israeli cabinet at its Sunday meeting would decide its stand on these negotiations.

The Egyptian proposal, while offering new flexibility on a number of points, was accompanied by threats to liberate Sinai by force if a new cease-fire expired without "tangible progress" toward an over-all Mideast settlement.

The Egyptian plan failed to mention El-Arish as the specific point to which Israeli troops should withdraw, one of the

President, Reagan End Differences on Welfare Reform

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon and California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, sometime rivals in Republican politics, have found a way to bridge their differences on welfare reform.

Nixon and Reagan conferred alone for an hour Friday at the Western White House, had an equally lengthy session with aides and then emerged to suggest that the President's stalled welfare revamping is much like the one Reagan is trying to push through California's Democratic-controlled Legislature.

At the same time, they gave every sign that a sharp dispute over California's compliance with federal welfare standards is approaching solution.

Reagan was among Nixon's challengers for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination. In January he said that the President appeared to be out of touch with national feelings on welfare.

11 Republicans Join In Withdrawal Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1971 withdrawal, saying the nation has lived up to its commitment to Saigon in full.

A letter making the same point but under Democratic sponsorship was sent five days ago and has obtained 40 signatures, but the GOP document adds a new element to the anti-war sentiment.

Only Republican
Until Friday Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California was the only Republican who had expressed public opposition to President Nixon's refusal to set a Dec. 31, 1971, deadline.

McCloskey indicated he might challenge Nixon in the presidential primaries next year if the war has not ended by then.

While crediting Nixon with substantially reducing the American force level in Vietnam and acknowledging joint Congressional responsibility for the war, the GOP letter said nevertheless:

"Mounting citizen concern about our role in the tragic Indochina war has dramatically swelled the ranks of those Americans favoring an early withdrawal of U.S. Military forces."

Where Were the Chaplains at My Lai?

Since World War II there has been considerable criticism of the role of the various churches in Germany whose leaders did not protest the atrocities, the calculated effort to wipe out all Jews, the tortures of captives, the slave labor. There were magnificent exceptions among members of the clergy, many of whom died themselves, including Dietrich Bonhoeffer who has come to be regarded by younger churchmen at least as something of a leader in the Christian church in the modern world.

So, asks Dr. Gordon Zahn, author of German Catholics and Hitler's Wars, where "were the chaplains assigned to Charley Company and why have they not been heard from in the almost three years that have passed since the dreadful slaughter took place?"

The slaughter of course was at My Lai. Dr. Zahn, himself a Roman Catholic and also author of The R.A.F. Chaplaincy: A Study of Role Tension, assumes that any chaplains around apparently accepted the same R.A.F. chaplains' attitude that "what happened was a tragic 'military necessity' or, even more likely, they avoided involving themselves in what they would regard as an intrusion into the commander's sphere of authority by even raising the question."

Dr. Zahn says he has personally suggested to Cardinal John Derron of Detroit that he call for a national day of reparations when masses would be offered for the victims of My Lai but in two years of such suggestions, he has not even heard from the Cardinal. He notes however that the Feast of the Holy Innocents was used in the Roman Catholic fight against abortion. He also asks

"how has Cardinal Cooke, Roman Catholic Bishop to the Armed Forces, defined his role in all of this? . . . Like his fellow bishops, and despite the additional and specific responsibilities imposed by that office, he has been silent. Twice now since the facts first came to light he has made his ritual, morale-boosting Christmas excursions to Vietnam. It would have been a simple enough matter to visit the scene of the atrocity and offer his own Mass for the victims as an act of penance and reparation for the evil committed there by men in his spiritual charge. Instead, silence."

All of this brings up the question, what is the role of the chaplains assigned to the armed forces? Dr. Zahn states that other denominations are equally silent except one, by which we assume he means the American Society of Friends (President Nixon's denomination by the way or at least it once was).

Men going into combat obviously need spiritual bolstering. But the church's role throughout history has not been very encouraging from the Crusades to the present time. Merely saying Mass or giving an evangelical lecture such as those presented by the Reverend Billy Graham seem to do little to prevent atrocities. Nor do they expand the responsibility of man to man beyond national limits. Perhaps it is too much to expect. War is war and an atrocity in itself.

What Dr. Zahn's article suggests is that we might as well do away with the whole matter of chaplains assigned to the armed services. They are an anachronism if they cannot prevent—or even protest—such events as My Lai.

Eight Cent Stamps

Another example of the question as to who determines what and how in our governmental operations has turned up.

The United States Postal Service is now printing a stamp with the picture of former President Dwight Eisenhower as in the past—with one big difference. It isn't a six cent stamp any longer. It is an eight cent stamp.

Such a boost in rates must be approved by Congress. Understandably the Postal Service has to look ahead as far as stamp demands are concerned and can't wait until they are needed to start printing them and putting them out. And the information drifting over from Congress to the Postal Service has probably pretty definitely indicated that the increase will be approved.

But this sort of "we have spent all this so we must go ahead and accept it so we have to spend more" philosophy is becoming too common. It was knocked down—so far—in the case of the SST.

But if one Congressman gets up and proclaims that the two cent increase is needed because the stamps are already printed—

Tax Withholding as a Protest

As tax time approaches and the concern over whether we are going to get out of Vietnam grows, apparently there is another organization growing, although it isn't likely to get awfully large. Officials of the War Tax Resistance with headquarters in New York City claim that there are now 181 active centers throughout the country and that there were at least 15,000 taxpayers in 1970 who withheld part of their income taxes in protest of the war.

At least so writes Milton Mayer, professor of English at the University of Massachusetts in a current issue of The Progressive.

Mr. Mayer points out there have been different tax withholding devices over the years although he doesn't mention one of the earlier ones, that of Henry Thoreau who protested the war with Mexico. Thoreau went to jail but was bailed out, somewhat angry, by his friend Ralph Waldo Emerson. Mayer points to some refusals to pay the telephone tax because Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said it had to be continued to help support the war, or what Mayer prefers to call "the war against My Lai."

But Mayer complains that generally all one loses in this type of withholding is the telephone. Cautiously he suggests one attack bigger game, the Internal Revenue Service. He himself twenty years ago withheld part of his tax in protest of American policies and claims it must have cost the United States Government $25,000 eventually to collect his $32.27. But he cautions, "mind you, I'm not advocating income tax refusal; not I. For all I know the advocacy itself constitutes a felony . . . operating on a very low and cautious level, I say unto you only, give them the dime or don't give them the dime—but don't ask, 'what can an old man do?'"

Quite obviously anyone who withholds the payment of the full amount of taxes is most likely to lose in the end. Since Holy Week approaches, Mayer's reference to the Bible chapter in which the Pharisees attempt to trap Jesus by asking whether it is lawful to give tribute to Caesar is appropriate, although his interpretation is a little different. Jesus, pointing to the portrait of Caesar upon a coin, replied, "render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." But Mayer points out that an earlier verse states that "Jesus, perceiving their wickedness" goes on to say, "why tempt me you hypocrites?" and there is little doubt but that Mayer must believe that there is wickedness indeed among some of our national leaders. Earlier he points out that "they've got the big battalions on their side (You know Whom you've got on yours,) and the capital letter is not a misprint."

There is little likelihood that many Americans have either the courage or the belief to follow the lead of members of the War Tax Resistance. But the testimony about My Lai—and the suspicions that it was not an isolated incident—have sickened the nation. Most of us will keep on rendering unto Caesar. The gnawing doubt is whether we can render unto God at the same time.

Troupe Plays to Full Houses

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Post for April 6, 1971.

Clifford's Dramatic Troupe has been playing to crowded houses in Bertschy's Hall the first three nights of the present week.

John Dillon, the favorite comedian in the Northwest, was, of course the center of attraction. His original, quaint and comic manners elicited numerous rounds of applause from his attentive listeners.

John Dillon will never fail to draw a crowded house in Appleton.

Mr. Edwin Clifford, the lessee and manager of the troupe, also has a host of admirers in this city. His peculiar talent, in our opinion, is the rendering of the tragical portion of the Drama. His superior ability in this respect is rarely, if ever, witnessed in others.

As a manager, Mr. Clifford is a gentleman of character and we daresay he will always meet with flattering reception in Appleton.

The other members of his troupe, Mrs. Edwin Clifford, Miss Adele Crocker, Miss Jennie Robinson, Miss Josie Orton, Mr. J. C. Wallace, and Mr. J. L. Barrett, are all artists of superior talents and have become favorites with our people.

Transit authorities are pressing ahead with work on a vast $70-billion highway system they hope to have completed by 1978, enabling motorists to drive over unbroken roads from coast to coast.

Primed by an additional grant of $9.7 billion recently approved by President Nixon, the farflung network of roads and superways is expected to run 42,500 miles over the length and breadth of the United States.

The bill authorizing the added $9.7 billion creates for the first time an urban highways system designed to ease traffic congestion in metropolitan areas.

The measure calls for construction of express bus lanes between fringe parking areas and downtown business centers.

The highway beautification program would be kept alive for one more year under the bill. But it creates a study commission to recommend its future course.

Continue Safety Program
The bill also continues the highway safety program for two years and creates a National Highway Institute to train state and federal highway officials.

Costs of the super highway system have soared to nearly twice the amount forecast when it was begun 14 years ago. The Federal Highway Administration, bombarded with complaints about ecological interference and urban upheaval, defends its vast interstate system with pride.

"People take them for granted, but these highways are really a godsend," said one top official.

They are also a costly undertaking. However, the interstate system already is priced at nearly three times the $25 billion it took to put men on the moon, and inflation and delays keep driving the costs higher.

A mile of urban expressway now costs an average of $5 million, but it is not unusual to find sections costing $10 million or even $20 million a year.

Come on Girls, Try Out For Amateur Night

Editor, The Post-Crescent: I have heard that an "amateur night" was advertised (in your newspaper) at a local night club. The amateurs, it seems, were invited to strip, dance topless, etc. Well, if this is someone's idea of a fun way to spend their money, I couldn't care Corners in the Major League were Bill Meltz, captain, and Robert Nettekoven, Cliff Weber and Joe Blair, all of route 2, Black Creek; Chet Stecker, route 3, Appleton, and Harold Gullixson, Appleton. They bowled for the Lind Skelly Station.

"Lake Road News" was the name of the expanded newspaper being published weekly every Sunday by 12-year-old Teddy Mathes. Only two years old and the result of receiving a hectograph as a Christmas gift, young Teddy had increased his subscriber list from his Lake Road neighbors to 113 customers throughout Neenah and Menasha.

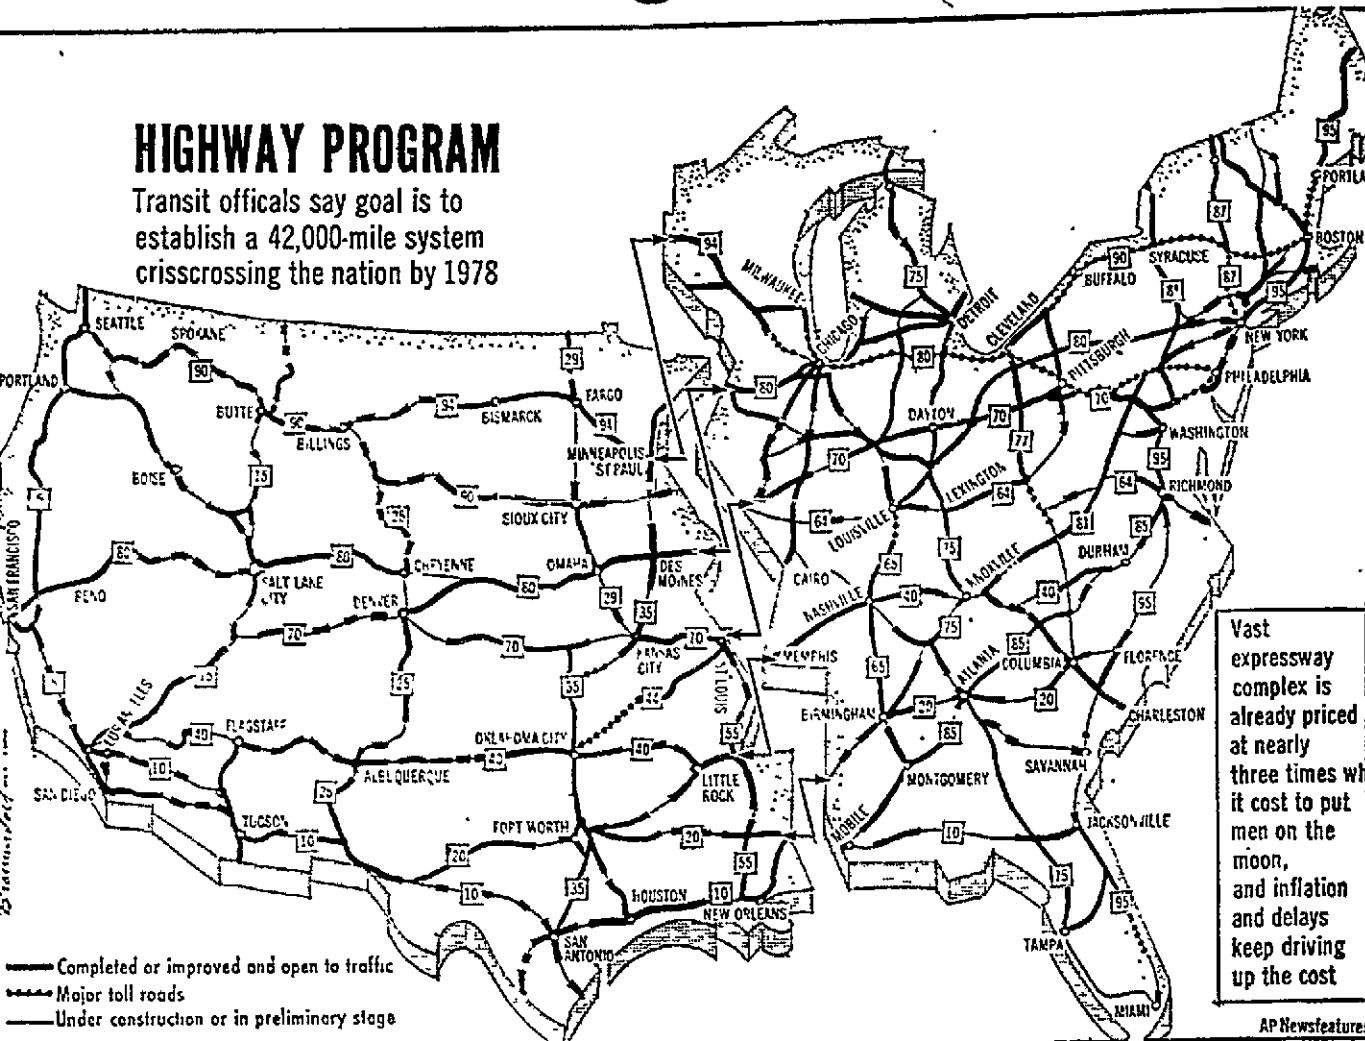

"Cash and Carry" was the name of the comedy in rehearsal at Weyauwega being given by the Little Theater Guild there. In the cast were Bernette Zeichert, Romona Granowitz, Donna Dietrich, Mary Kay Classon, and La Berta Kruse.

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, April 1, 1961.

Service chairman for the Outagamie County unit of the American Cancer Society was Miss Lynda Hollenbeck. Dr. Paul Cunningham and Miss Inez Davis were on her committee.

Jack Vanderloop was elected president of the Kaukauna Rod and Gun Club. Others elected were Ronald Hammond, vice president; Thomas Zwick, secretary; Jerry Hawley, treasurer; Richard Verfuth, George Zwick and Luther Grebe, trustees.

Mrs. Perry Pollard was in charge of leader training courses that spring for Fox Valley Area Girl Scouts. The series was to include six basic courses plus one outdoor basic course. Assisting Mrs. Pollard in the training program were Mrs. Lloyd Beach, Mrs. Harlow Hilliker and Mrs. Kent Dickerman.

Hardest hit by the mounting costs are the overpasses and elevated expressways that abound in big cities. The cost of such structures has soared five times as rapidly as the price of pavement.

It will be at least seven years before autoists can drive over superways that stretch unbroken from coast to coast.

The original 1972 deadline for completing the system has been shoved back to 1978 by Congress. Some transport experts believe that the program will not be finished before the 1980s.

But Francis C. Turner, head of the Federal Highway Administration, forecast last year that most of the system will be open to traffic a good deal earlier, with the exception of a few costly segments.

"We're going to be having an awful big chunk of that which you're going to be driving on by New Year's Eve 1975 or 1976," he said.

Republican Endorsements Were Anti-LaFollette Move

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The party endorsement rule of the Republican state voluntary organization derived from unique political circumstances in this state early in the 20th Century only vaguely recollected by most of the practicing Republicans of today.

It was the success of the founder of the LaFollette "dynasty," the late Robert M. La Follette Sr., in wresting control of the Republican party machinery in what was then a one party state. He retained it year after year and operated it as a political fief that persuaded intraparty opponents that they needed a vehicle outside the statutory framework that was under enemy control.

It was in 1925, in the year of La Follette's death at the height of his power, that the Stalwarts, as they called themselves, resolved to set up a competing machine to fight the "Progressives," as the genius of the elder La Follette persuaded the electorate to identify his following. Frail, wispy William J. Campbell, an Oshkosh lumberman, was generously credited with the authorship of the idea. In any event, his persistence and energy were powerfully contributing factors to the birth and survival.

Other Founders Involved
Other men of lustre in Republican party history in Wisconsin were involved. Among them as Walter S. Goodland, a Racine publisher and a leading state senator of the time. He ironically turned out to be an insurgent, in the "Stalwart" view, when he inherited the governorship more than 20 years later upon the pre-inaugural death of another.

Walter J. Kohler Sr. was there, and in 1928 gave the Stalwarts their most satisfying early success when he was elected governor. The story of that period cries out for the attention of professional historians before more time passes.

The idea was to provide Republican primary election voters, who were given only choices of the La Follette circle for the chief nominations, an alternative "regular" Republican slate at a time when the national Republican party ruled without serious challenge. Rival conventions were held. Rival campaign machinery was established. Rival campaign funds were collected.

No Registration Required
Endorsement of the "voluntary committee" conventions was a signal of the identity of the anti-La Follette candidates for nominations in a primary that then as now was "open," meaning that party registration of voters was not required.

The state was considerably smaller. Campaign funding was not as extravagant. Altogether, it was a pragmatic arrangement. In a one party state, it afforded the choices that were available in other states where Democrats provided alternatives. Here the Democratic party existed largely as a legal fiction.

The rationale changed when the La Follettes rashly—in the verdict of history—plunged into a third party adventure with the establishment of the Progressive ballot in 1934.

Reports Unnecessary

But then it soon dawned on the Stalwarts that their mechanism provided a convenient means for the avoidance of election expenditure laws. The State Supreme Court following one of the campaigns of the senior Kohler found that the funding and spending limitations did not apply to voluntary associations of which the candidate had no direct knowledge.

That decision was exploited by later voluntary groups, including the contemporary Democratic organization. Its importance became more important biennially as the costs of campaigns rocketed, as will be noted in subsequent reports.

Lt. Calley Martyr for All Who Make War

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

With the verdict of the Calley trial in mind, I would like to appeal to the public to judge not Lt. Calley, but themselves and the military machine that represents us in Vietnam. If Lt. Calley can be sentenced to life imprisonment plus a number of military dishonors, what about the others who are guilty of the same crime? It is a fact, a known fact, that 22 civilians were killed in 1968 at My Lai, but what about the thousands of other My Lais in every war that no one hears about? How is Calley different from them? How is he different from every pilot who ever dropped a bomb that killed civilians? How is he different from Hiroshima? Aren't we all just as guilty for commending that? Sure, it ended the war, but it sure cost a lot of lives to do it.

This great country of ours has made William Calley a martyr to cover up what every army is guilty of in every war. War is hell. Bad things happen that are beyond any one man's control. But why then does one man have to take all the consequences? Aren't his commanding officers just as wrong as he?

What man, sane or insane, would take upon himself to go all alone into a village and just up and shoot 22 people? This is unreal, of course. There must have been orders of some kind.

I don't condone war or any of the activities connected with war, but who are we to judge what is right or wrong for a man in a war situation? A man's only value is his own life. They are taught this feeling. They are taught to kill. Our morals aren't legitimate for such a situation.

Write your congressmen, your senators, your governor, even the president himself. A terrible injustice has been done and the American people are the only ones that can generate enough "pressure" to make this situation right.

Objects to Persecution Of Welfare Recipients

Editor, The Post-Crescent: I feel the need to voice my opposition to the action being taken by our mayor regarding the relief files. In the past our mayor has shown a distinctly prejudiced attitude toward the city welfare department and anyone who is on its rolls. I find it hard to believe that he would be fair in his evaluation of the relief roles if he did see them.

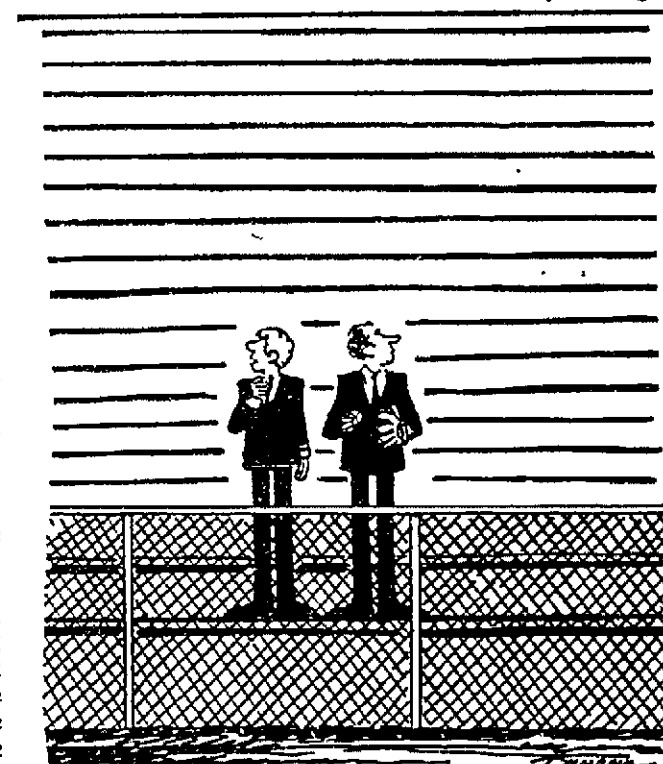

It seems ironic to me that we as taxpayers allow so much of our "hard earned money" to be spent on a needless war in Asia, the space program, paying farmers not to grow crops, and trips by our city, state, and federal officials, and yet we ignore it. But we yell like hell when a "small" amount of money is used to help our neighbors in a time of need. Is this a Christian country?

Ways to Check for Curvature of Spine

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M. D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you discuss scoliosis? It would be good to give the warning signals so parents could save their children the ordeal of spinal fusion and months in a cast later on. — Mrs. J. D.

Scoliosis is a sideways curvature of the spine. Ninety per cent of the cases have developed by adolescence, and the problem is more prevalent in girls, by about nine to one. There are differing causes. It may be a congenital defect and has been seen and identified in young children. Polio used to cause a lot of cases because it caused an imbalance of the muscles in the back, drawing the spine out of alignment. That cause, of course, has been virtually eliminated now.

One theory of scoliosis that develops in adolescence is that it has to do with growth spurts, throwing the spine out of line. Injury, naturally, can cause it; so can infection involving the spine (especially tuberculosis) — but these are less common causes.

Anyway, there are several signs that raise a suspicion of scoliosis. One is a tilting of the shoulders or hip bone. A prominent shoulder blade is another. A faulty, slouched posture sometimes is a clue.

Another way, if you have any reason to suspect scoliosis, or if you just want to be on the safe side, is to have a youngster stand up straight. The vertebrae can be seen and easily felt. Normally they are in a straight vertical line. With scoliosis, a deviation from side to side will be apparent.

In a good many cases, mild scoliosis requires no treatment. Other cases can be corrected by exercises to strengthen the muscles of the back, and sometimes a brace may be helpful.

Only extreme cases require spinal fusion or months in a cast or other surgical treatment.

Early recognition and treatment will avoid these more drastic measures so, Mrs. J. D., I think your suggestion of writing this column was a useful thought.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I noticed an item in your column, someone wanting to know if brown-eyed parents could have blue-eyed children.

My mother and father both had brown eyes, and they had 10 children, five with blue eyes and five with brown. The youngest were twin girls, and one had blue eyes and the other had brown.

I don't suppose you will print this, but it might settle the minds of a lot of people. — Mrs. R. E. S.

Why shouldn't I print it? While it's not common, there's no reason why brown-eyed people of suitable heredity can't have blue-eyed youngsters.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there an cure for hives? I break out all over with them and my lips and face swell up. I have been to several doctors but they don't help me. — Mrs. E. P.

Hives are an allergic reaction — and finding out what you are sensitive to is the problem. It isn't often easy. The only reasonable advice I can offer is that you go to one doctor instead of several (Preferably an allergist) and accept the fact that it may take more than a little searching to find out what is causing your hives.

Only then are you likely to make any headway in preventing the trouble. Keep a diary of foods eaten 12 to 24 hours before the rash breaks out. This may give you a clue if it is due to food.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of the booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way To Stop It." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents to cover cost of printing and handling. (Copyright 1971)

Stephensville Board Tables Bike Trail Plan

STEPHENSVILLE — A letter was read from the Outagamie County Public Property and Parks Committee in regard to setting up bicycle trails in the town when the Ellington Town Board met. No action was taken, and it was voted to table the proposal at this time.

Another letter was read from the Wisconsin Department of Taxation in regard to land that was put in the Woodland tax law, including the property of Harold Ort, 3.48 acres, and Wilbur Rath, 22 acres.

A building permit was issued to Harold Ort, section 12, for a new machine shed.

HINTS FROM Heloise

BY HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

I have young children and they love to play with lightweight hassocks I make from small metal wastebaskets. I turn them upside down, stuff the top with cotton and cover them with pretty adhesive-backed paper.

The little ones can shove them all around and there are no sharp edges for them to injure themselves.

Sandra Jackson

Now, aren't you the smart Mom. Not only do these little hassocks add a decorative touch to your home but afford hours of play for the kids.

Dear Heloise:

My husband usually grabs the first shirt that is handy in his closet. I have devised a method of rotating his work shirts so they all have the same amount of wear.

I number them in the neckband with a marking pen and place them in numerical order in his closet.

He is intrigued with the idea and it is no problem to find the "proper" shirt.

No Name

Dear Heloise:

I have recently stopped smoking and have found a brilliant new way to use my ashtrays. I use them as spoon holders on my stove.

Sheila Goldstein

Dear Heloise:

It is very discouraging to sew

a long seam on the sewing machine only to find that the bobbin has run out of thread away back.

So I tried coloring about a foot of the thread with a tailor's chalk before threading the bobbin. This gives me a little warning of the amount left when the bobbin is nearly empty.

Letter of Tears

When I read your "Letter of Laughter" about the little gal who used bunches of artificial geraniums to brighten her garden, I didn't laugh.

Instead, I went right out to my barren garden with all the artificial flowers I had around the house and "planted" them.

They looked beautiful and I was so proud of the effect.

But, the next time I looked outside, the dog had carried off all the artificial flowers.

Tony Taylor

Dear Heloise:

We wanted to take our kitten on our vacation.

A cat-carrying cage was expensive, so we decided to make one. It was so simple — one plastic clothes basket was the top and another clothes basket was the bottom. Four plant stem-wires were twisted around to form hinges on the side, front and back of the baskets.

The cage was so cool and there was plenty of room for the kitten to stretch.

R. C.

Dear Heloise:

Here's how I fixed the worn-out cording on an otherwise good divan.

I used a large needle and heavy thread (several strands of embroidery thread works best), and just whipped this closely over and over the cording.

The cording looks wonderful, and it will last for a long time.

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

For the first time in 14 years, Italy will not be one of the competing teams in the 1971 World Championship. The 1971 championship is scheduled in early May and will be played in Taipei, Taiwan.

Last year The Aces replaced Italy as world champions and will defend their title in May. Five other teams will participate. They represent South America (Brazil), the Far East (Taiwan), Europe (France), Australia, and North America (United States).

Roger Trezel and Pierre Jais will be one of the pairs on the French team. They are an outstanding partnership and have had previous experience in world championship play.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.
Against Trezel's five-spade contract, West selected the obvious lead of the diamond king. How was Trezel going to avoid the loss of one heart trick and two club tricks?

He played dummy's deuce of diamonds at the first trick! The defense was now helpless. Trezel won the diamond continuation with dummy's ace and discarded a heart from his hand.

Two rounds of trumps were played, followed by two high hearts and a heart ruff to establish the suit. Two of Trezel's clubs were discarded on dummy's hearts and the contract was made, declarer losing only one diamond and one club.

Note that the "automatic" play of dummy's diamond ace at trick one will condemn the hand to defeat. Declarer would not be able to prevent East from gaining the lead in the heart suit for the killing shift through declarer's king of clubs.

Another point of interest is that if West had been clairvoyant and had led a low diamond instead of the king, Trezel's opportunity for his imaginative play would have been thwarted. If declarer ducked, then East's diamond 10 would win the trick for the club shift. If declarer played the diamond ace, East would later gain entry in hearts for the same club shift.

Your Problems

Use Large Earmuffs, Keep Straight Face

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boss is a charming, successful, educated, well-paid executive who uses language that would shock a mule skinner. He doesn't use this language at me — but in my presence. For example, when I am taking dictation and he gets a phone call he cusses a blue streak. I am truly embarrassed by it and I don't know what to do.

I know his wife cannot get him to clean up his language because I've seen her try and fail. I don't feel it is my place to say anything. The boss has a cute sense of humor and he might respond to the light approach. Any suggestions? — Blue Eared Sec in Charlotte, N. C.

Dear Sec: The next time you go into the boss' office for dictation, bring along a set of ridiculously large earmuffs. (Fur, if possible). When the profanity starts, clap on the earmuffs and keep a straight face. He'll get the message. If he doesn't soft pedal the blue talk, feign deafness and whistle Dixie.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for giving teens the benefit of the doubt. So few adults do these days, which is part of the problem. In a recent column you said, "Teen-agers have a magnificent way of living up to their parents' high opinion of them." As a teen-ager I can tell you it really works. I have a couple of buddies whose parents always called them no-good bums, said they weren't worth anything, and predicted they would surely end up in trouble. Both of these kids ended up just as their parents predicted. One is in a reform school and the other was caught holding up a gas station and he is out on bail. Neither of these guys had anything to live up to — so they didn't even try.

My parents have always made me feel that I was honorable and that they trusted me. They have given me many privileges and I've been careful not to abuse them. I don't ever remember my mom or dad telling me I was bad. I would rather die than disappoint them because they think the world of me and I'd feel rotten if I let them down. If you think this letter is worth printing, go ahead and put it in your column. — Alpena, Mich.

Dear Al: I do and I will. Thanks for the day-brightener.

Reading is still the fastest way to program the human brain.

Man's brain, the human computer, faces a problem. Like man-made computers, the brain can process data with such lightning speed that men are hard-pressed to devise ways of feeding it information fast enough.

In fact, the human brain has been called the world's finest, most expensive computer. By comparison, the largest electronic computer in use today looks like a child's plaything.

But in an era of "information explosion," how do you "program" information to the human brain? Spoken language is far too slow. The average person speaks about 150 words per minute. The mind can think far faster than that.

In fact, man has yet to devise a means of feeding information to his brain that is more efficient than the written word. Fast readers can read up to 1,500 words a minute—ten times the average rate for the spoken word. Scanning can accelerate this rate still more.

Perhaps some day men will devise some electronic system to program their own brains more rapidly. Until they do, no method is as efficient as the written word.

The alphabet, movable type and the printing press are among man's oldest inventions. But as tools for furthering human knowledge they are as modern as the most modern computer.

Perhaps this is the reason more people still get more information from daily newspapers than from any other source.

Jingo Recommends Fun Show 'Pinafore'

Gilbert & Sullivan Favorite Comes Through As Ambitious Production Well Performed

BY JINGO
There's always a certain risk involved in doing a show as familiar and well-loved as Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore."

Not only can many members of the audience be expected to know the music and lyrics as well as the cast, but there also are likely to be, ricocheting around in the minds of the spectators, memories of earlier performances by such professional and semi-professional groups as D'Oyly Carte and Milwaukee's Skylight Opera Co., Ltd.

For this reason Jingo approached the current production of "Pinafore" by the UWGB-Fox Valley's music and theater departments with a certain amount of trepidation. This despite the promise of a veteran cast and an experienced directorial staff.

Fortunately, as it turned out, Jingo need not have worried.

Familiar Scene
An ambitious and colorful setting combined with several excellent performances, succeeded at Wednesday night's dress rehearsal in producing a show that—despite a degree of roughness to be honed away during actual performance—appeared to delight a near-capacity preview audience.

Here, again, were all the familiar G & S characters—Josephine, who loved a sailor but was betrothed to vain Sir Joseph Porter, "ruler of the Queen's navy"; lovable Captain Corcoran, commander of the Pinafore; Little Buttercup, the "bumboat woman"; and, of course, the heartily hated Dick Deadeye, able seaman.

The score, as interpreted under the baton of musical Director Franklin Doverspike, seemed as fresh as ever. Stage Director Kenneth Anderson kept the action moving briskly along its tradition-hallowed path.

No Beginners These
Anderson was fortunate, in his efforts, in having engaged the services of such well-known area thespians as Christine Anania as the love-smitten Josephine; Marjorie Anania as Buttercup; Gordon Case, as Sir Joseph Porter; Clyde Terrell as Captain Corcoran, and Daniel J. Weiland as Rackshaw.

Christine Anania, in particular, was in excellent voice; a well-prepared singer who can also act. She particularly was impressive in her scene, "The Hours Creep On Apace." Marjorie Anania shared vocal honors as Buttercup and the bearded Weiland, playing Able Seaman Rackshaw, was well matched with Miss Anania in their duet, "Refrain, Audacious Tar."

In Gilbert and Sullivan, the quality of diction required to put across the highly literate lyrics is particularly important. In this regard the Ananias, Weiland and Gordon Case showed merit. As Captain Corcoran, Josephine's father, Clyde Terrell proved himself an able, eye-rolling clown, but Wednesday night he still was not snapping out Gilbert's lines with sufficient precision for them to be easily understood by the audience.

Excellent Support.
Jeanne Jeffries, as Cousin Hebe; Ralph Buesing, as Bill Bobstay; Gary Meade as Dick Deadeye, and Jerry Keepers as Bob Becket, provided sturdy support for the principals. Warranting more than a word of praise is the impressive setting, designed and constructed by James Bond and Bill Heidtke. With a prow that jills into the very midst of the audience, this two-level super structure is a distinct asset to the production, as are Chris Skarda's eye-catching costumes.

In sum, this is a "Pinafore"

that is both ambitious and fun. Jingo recommends it heartily. The run continues tonight and concludes Sunday, with both performances at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theater of the UWGB-Fox Valley Center, Midway Road, Menasha.

Jack Benny, Violin Visit Welk Show

BY TV SCOUT
6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — Jack Benny brings his violin. His "well-l-l-l," and his jokes to The Lawrence Welk Show which has a tuneful outing featuring songs nominated for Academy Awards over the years.

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Paris (Leonard Nimoy) has a motorcycle accident on Mission: Impossible, only it's not really an accident. He's captured, drugged, worked on via old memories of his mother and a woman he loved, and programmed to kill Phelps (Peter Graves) when he is released. Jill Haworth is a guest but the most important actor, as far as providing a clue, is a German shepherd dog. (R)

7:30-8 Channels 2-7 — Little Dodie (Dawn Lyn) learns, on My Three Sons, that her mother and stepfather are about to celebrate their first wedding anniversary, so she decides to have a party. In her little mind, all that means is that you ask people to be there and them "bring presents." (R)

7:30-8:30 Channel 11 — The Pearl Bailey Show has a goodie with Danny Thomas and Pearl funny and poignant as they discuss growing old, Lola Falana, in a brief white costume nearly burning up the screen with "Fever," and the great Carmen MacRae, who makes very few TV appearances. Danny was so impressed with Lola that he signed her to appear with him in Chicago next month. The show was also taped on the day that both Pearl and Danny learned their series had been canceled. The finale salutes baseball. Pearl is a baseball nut!

8-8:30 Channels 2-7 — Arnie (Herschel Bernardi) learns a lesson from his son when, just as he is nagging his boy to get his hair cut, Arnie himself is ordered to shave off his mustache to conform to the image his new job should project. (R)

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — As they must to young women who live alone, burglars drop in on the star of The Mary Tyler Moore Show. The police, particularly Bob Dishy, are very helpful when her TV set and stereo are stolen. But the crooks return and clean out the apartment of everything but her sofa-bed, a lamp and that letter "M" which decorates her wall.

9-10 Channels 2-7 — Mannix repeats an episode seen only last January. In it, Joe (Mike Connors) wakes up in the hospital and discovers he has lost Sunday. It was a day in which he fell from a bridge and thus got to the hospital. Subliminal flashes help him as he tries to retrace the day. It's not a bad script and the cast — Kate Woodville, Francine York, Fred Beir, J. Pat O'Malley and Georgine Darcy — helps. (R)

Superb Beginning 'Faustus' Inaugurates Experimental Theater At Oshkosh University

BY JOHN MINER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
OSHKOSH — Triple blessings and thanks are due the board of regents and everyone else who had a hand in providing Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh with its remarkable experimental theater in the new Fine Arts building.

It's been a long time coming, but the University drama department at last has an intimate, flexible room which, if a first impression Thursday night is correct, should serve WSU-Oshkosh theater people and the play-going public admirably.

Seating about 150, the experimental theater is a boxlike room with black walls and a small platform in lieu of conventional stage. The room is wonderfully cozy, allowing a nice rapport between actors and audience. Acoustics seemed to be excellent.

Happy Play Choice
Dr. Gloria Link, director, made a judicious and happy choice in offering Christopher Large Gate Expected At Photo Expo 71

CHICAGO — The National Association of Photographic Manufacturers is expecting a 100,000 attendance for the nine-day run of Photo Expo 71, to begin April 17 in Chicago. The show will be at the rebuilt McCormick Place.

Don Burdick of the faculty is the chorus voice.
Dr. Link's tight, forceful direction, coupled with the flexible design of the room, keeps the action right on course. The costumes, particularly those of Lucifer and his minions, are delightful.

Handsomely Set
The production is handsomely designed and mounted by Norman F. Lewis.
A large bank of overhead lights gives experimental theater the potential for all manner of interesting effects, while the sound system, which provides "Faustus" with appropriate spooky music, is superb.
Theater fans who wish to see this first use of an important new teaching tool for WSU-Oshkosh may indulge themselves at 8 p.m. today and Sunday.

County, City Can't Agree on Oneida Bridge Priority

Outagamie County Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson Friday advised waiting a year for completion of a local transportation study before committing city and county funds to a high-level Oneida Street bridge.

But city officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives disagreed sharply, saying there already have been several studies, all substantiating the need for the bridge.

They further warned that delay could be costly, boosting the price of the span through inflation while weakening chances of getting in on state long-bonding funding.

Somewhere in between but leaning toward the city's position was State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton, who doubles as county supervisor and is chairman of the county highway committee.

"Somewhat Convinced"

He said he is "somewhat convinced" that the city is right, and that the Oneida bridge should be built before the Memorial Drive Bridge is replaced. The Memorial bridge is on a tentative state priority list. The Oneida is not, but the city has asked the Highway Commission to reverse the situation.

"I feel that we should not be in a hurry," Brownson told some 90 city and county officials and Appleton businessmen at a Chamber-sponsored informational meeting. Designed to inform city and county, the session served rather to focus more sharply on the differences between Brownson and some county supervisors who support him, and their Appleton counterparts.

Under the state Long Bridge Act, the city, county and state each would pay one-third of the bridge cost. Without County Board agreement to provide its third, the bridge is unlikely to be built. And both Brownson's and Conradt's opinions count heavily with many supervisors.

The County Board highway committee recently tabled a City Council request asking the county to agree formally to pay its share.

Brownson revealed one of his concerns is having a bridge built outside the east Appleton city limits at French Road.

Another Bridge

He asked the luncheon gathering at the Conway Motor Inn how long the county would have to wait for state funds for that bridge, if the state first contributes one-third the Oneida bridge cost.

Conradt said, however, "I don't think we would be out of line to ask (the state) for two bridges," since both are needed.

Brownson referred to a $350,000 transportation study being conducted by the Fox Valley Council of Governments (CBG) with 85 per cent state and federal funds. Brownson asked what need there is for the study "if we're so good" to be able to give the Oneida span first priority.

John Hennessy, Chamber transportation chairman and meeting moderator, remarked there already have been "five studies, more or less, all of which have given us the same conclusion."

Follow Advice of Studies

He said based on those studies, "it is about time we start following the conclusions of the studies for which we are paying."

South side Ald. Edward Maloney (8th), whose area would feel the impact of the Oneida bridge, told Brownson the city and county should "act as soon as we can, and not wait three years when the cost may be doubled again."

Brownson had challenged cost figures dating back to 1968 when one of the studies, by Howard Needles, Tammen & Bergendoff, engineering consultants, placed a $5.3 million cost estimate on the bridge and its approaches.

"I think we're talking a minimum of $10 million," declared Brownson. Others agreed that inflation has pushed the cost upward, though not necessarily to $10 million.

All figures offered are guesses, it was brought out, since the most recent cost-engineering report available is the 1968 study. Hennessy said he would place the cost between $8 million and $10 million and City Engineer Thomas Harp opted for "a ballpark figure of $8 million."

Russell DeLahunt, county board chairman, after referring to Brownson as an expert, said, "I will have to let the experts convince me" whether the Oneida or another bridge should be built first, and when.

But he later pointed out that the city will pay one-third of the cost directly, and in addition pay roughly half the county's third through the county tax levied in the city. As a county official, he concluded, "My concern is that we aren't doing something that the City of Appleton won't wish later it had not done."

Supv. Harold Miller of the Town of Grand Chute said expert advice should be followed, without considering "emotional things."

After hearing several city officials present the case for the Oneida bridge, Conradt said, "I am somewhat convinced that the statements that have been made certainly are valid."

Near Endorsement

"I certainly am in favor of an alternate route" for carrying Memorial traffic when that span is replaced, he continued. "I am almost convinced that Oneida Street would be the proper route on which to alternate this traffic."

The statement nearly endorses the reasoning of city officials, who believe Oneida would be unable to bear the detoured Memorial traffic unless the Oneida bridge is built first.

Ald. Robert Roemer (8th), prime mover on the City Council to get the Oneida bridge built, warned that there is stiff competition for the state bridge-building funds, so agreement must come promptly.

He added that the highway commission has made it clear it won't move to put the Oneida bridge on the priority list "until there is complete agreement between the city and the county."

Conradt repeated the call for unity. "If we don't dip in there and get our share, we're going to be sitting holding the bag." If there is too much delay, he added, "the bag is going to be empty again."

Chamber spokesman Harold Adams compared the Oneida traffic problem to a case of cancer which can be cured in its early stages but if neglected "becomes a horrible thing and you can't do anything about it."

Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl, citing the need for better emergency vehicle routes between the north and south sides, said the City Council "should be the body that should spearhead this program." Hennessy agreed, concluding the session by saying the council should formulate a plan, since the city will bear close to half the cost.

Approval Sought For Bonding Hike

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Increased local interest and availability of more federal money have prompted the Department of Natural Resources to increase its request for the sale of bonds to help finance municipal and regional pollution abatement facilities.

Lester Voigt, secretary of the department told the legislature's Joint Finance Committee Friday that the department would like permission to float $60 million in bonds under the ORAP-200 program rather than the $32.5 million formally requested in the department's budget.

Up to $144 million in bonds may be sold for pollution abatement facilities under provisions of the Outdoor Recreation Act Program-200 enacted by the last session of the legislature, after a statewide referendum. The remaining funds are to be used for acquisition and development of recreation land.

208 Applications

Voigt told the committee that expansion of the pollution abatement funds "is needed much more rapidly than anticipated." He said that department has 208 applications from local units of government on hand for the funds. The applications represent waste treatment projects throughout the state that would cost about $198 million. The state's share would be $50 million, the local share the same, and the federal support either 50 per cent for single community projects or 55 per cent for regional projects.

In the budget, prepared some time ago, the Department of Natural Resources had requested less money for pollution abatement projects than the $32.4 million used during the 1969-1971 biennium. The increased local interest, and the greater availability of federal funds for the federal portion of the projects prompted the DNR to ask for a larger release of funds.

In contrast to the educational agencies that appeared before the joint finance group earlier in the week, the DNR did not take issue with the governor's changes in their departmental requests. Voigt in fact merely presented the governor's own recommendation for use of ORAP funds for recreation areas, despite the changes in priority from those presented by the department.

Recreation Ratio

The department had requested that ORAP funds for recreation areas be allocated at a ratio of 55 per cent for land acquisition and 45 per cent for land development, totaling $14.8 million.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, however, proposed that the same amount of money be divided with $9.8 million or 66 per cent for land acquisition and $5 million or 33 per cent for development.

In the 1969 session of the legislature the department had recommended a split of recreation money on a formula similar to that proposed for the new budget, but the legislature established a revised policy of only 30 per cent for acquisition and 70 per cent for development of parklands in order to provide immediately usable facilities for constituents. The department had favored land purchasing in order to acquire land as soon as possible before prices increased, making the bonding money ultimately spread over a smaller area.

Price Too High?

Rep. Ernest Korpela, D-Washburn, accused the department of spending too much for the land it has purchased under the ORAP program particularly in the Ashland-Bayfield area he represents. Korpela said he knew of a number of persons who acquired land for one price and within a short time sold it at double or triple the price to the state for recreation areas.

Voigt told Korpela he would review land purchase details with him, but advised the committee that purchases are made only after appraisals are made. He said that the department has discontinued the practice of publishing priorities for land acquisition under the ORAP program because it had been discovered that speculators beat the department to the land and then attempted to make significant profits over short periods by sale of the land to the DNR.

"People criticize us for being too harsh and for being too lenient. We've only been going for two years and we expect to get more expertise," Voigt said in reference to charges that land was bought at inflated prices.

Lucey to Propose River Pollution Watch

MADISON — Automatic monitoring of wastes in the Fox and Wisconsin rivers is high on the priority list of programs the Department of Natural Resources has proposed for funding under a special environmental package to be introduced to the legislature by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

In the face of the governor's proposal that $3.1 million be cut from the DNR budget requests for environmental protection programs and that a similar amount would be included in the overall budget after the governor makes specific recommendations of his own, the department has submitted a list of programs it suggests be

Tri-Villages to Elect Presidents Tuesday

Village presidencies will be voted on Tuesday in Kimberly, Combined Locks and Little Chute, but only in the first two are contests provided. Little Chute President Edward Spierings is unopposed.

A real battle is expected in Combined Locks, where incumbent Daniel Williams is opposed by former Trustee Marvin Schumacher. Both vied for the office in 1969, with Williams winning by 49 votes. A similar close race is expected this year.

For the first time in over 20 years, Kimberly residents will vote on a ballot without Village President Alvin Fulcer's name on it. Fulcer, who is retiring, will be succeeded by James Siebers or Eugene Schellhout. Incumbent trustees are both having had considerable experience in public office.

Siebers has served several terms as president of the board of education, while Schellhout served on the school board and as a village trustee.

Six candidates seek the three trustee posts to be filled in Kimberly. John Gaffney is the lone incumbent as Schellhout, whose term expires, seeks higher office, and the third incumbent, Paul Van Dyke, decided not to run. Others on the ballot are Joseph McCann, John Revoir, James Bergeron, Russell Zillges and Willard Van Grinsven.

In Combined Locks, six candidates seek three trustee posts. They are incumbents George Bosch, Henry Wulterkens and Gerald Wydeven and Mrs. Alvin Sanders, Alvin "Mike" Peters and Donald Ourada, the latter a former trustee.

In Little Chute two of three trustee incumbents will seek election, as Patrick Blohm announced late last year that he would not run.

Incumbent trustees are George Vanderloop Sr. and Lloyd Vanden Heuvel. Other candidates are James Stoffel, Martin T. Jansen, Donald DeGroot and Tom A. Gruman.

Little Chute voters also will choose two school board members, with incumbents Miss Helen Koehn and Mrs. Laverne VandenHeuvel being opposed by

More Medical Education Need Stressed at Hearing

GREEN BAY — The tragedy in medical education is that "somewhere between 50 and 75" qualified medical school applicants will be turned away at the University of Wisconsin Medical School in Madison next year at a time when doctors are drastically needed, according to assistant dean Dr. Mare Hansen.

Hansen was one of 20 persons who testified at a public hearing here this week on Senate Bill 255, which would expand medical education, including medical new monies in the last biennium on a $2.2 million request.

Rejected Applicants

The tragedy of rejected applicants was echoed by other speakers favoring Lorge's legislation, including Dr. Philip White, dean of the Medical College of Wisconsin (formerly Marquette) and Dr. Lyle Edelblute, a Green Bay radiologist on the faculty of the Bellin Memorial Hospital School of X-ray Technology.

Edelblute noted that he will have to reject about 60 of 65 applicants for freshman spots at the X-ray school. "They are applying at rates 10 times what we can take. I'm sure they'll go into another field" and be lost to medicine, he said.

Much of the testimony about solutions to these ironies dealt with the bill's provision to expand the state's two medical colleges to more than twice their capacity (from 110 graduates each annually to 260 each) years. Students could utilize, or to create "a new medical outlying hospital clinical facilities for clinical concentrations," he said.

The dilemma is due to trends the past 20 years, he said, when federal monetary support went into research on the theory breakthroughs would cut down the need for doctors. "It's left us underfinanced for clinical education of professionals."

He cited a stable, preferably state funding mechanism as a top priority, noting UW Medical School only received $250,000 in new monies in the last biennium on a $2.2 million request.

per class . . . as soon as feasible."

Most seemed to favor a total plan which would do something about Madison and Milwaukee schools first by utilizing wider clinical facilities in the state over constructing a third new medical school. Green Bay, La Crosse, and Marshfield are mentioned as possible sites in the legislation, which leaves the alternatives open.

Opposes Construction

Dr. Henry Rahr, Luxemburg, said he was quite opposed to the construction of a third school, because he thought it was the most expensive and unnecessary approach.

Dr. George Behnke, Kaukauna, spokesman for the State Medical Society, said that is the society's view.

The society feels the present two should be expanded, with necessary satellite programs in other cities besides Madison and Milwaukee, rather than a third school constructed.

"What we need is to produce more physicians now. We could accomplish this in a shorter period of time. It would be a minimum of 10 years to build up a new school and produce quality physicians," Behnke said.

Dr. Bruce Stoehr, Green Bay surgeon and co-chairman of the Brown County Health Planning Committee, said he thought the "easiest, most economic and fastest" approach would be to upgrade the state's residency and internship programs, since at least 62 per cent of residents stay in the state afterwards, compared with about 35 per cent of immediate medical school graduates.

duce more reliable data on river pollution.

The Marathon County assemblyman said he frequently receives anonymous phone calls, apparently from employees of Wisconsin River paper companies, in which the callers report that the companies that normally bypass effluent into the river are turning on pollution abatement equipment in preparation for announced visits from DNR officials.

Voigt also told the finance committee that his department has proposed funds for shoreland management, surveys and standards programs an increase in the air pollution control program, solid waste disposal

State Ranks Low

"Wisconsin ranks near the bottom in the number of residencies and internships," he said.

Another problem in doctor utilization is public education, Stoehr stressed. "People want to see a specialist for every little thing, he said.

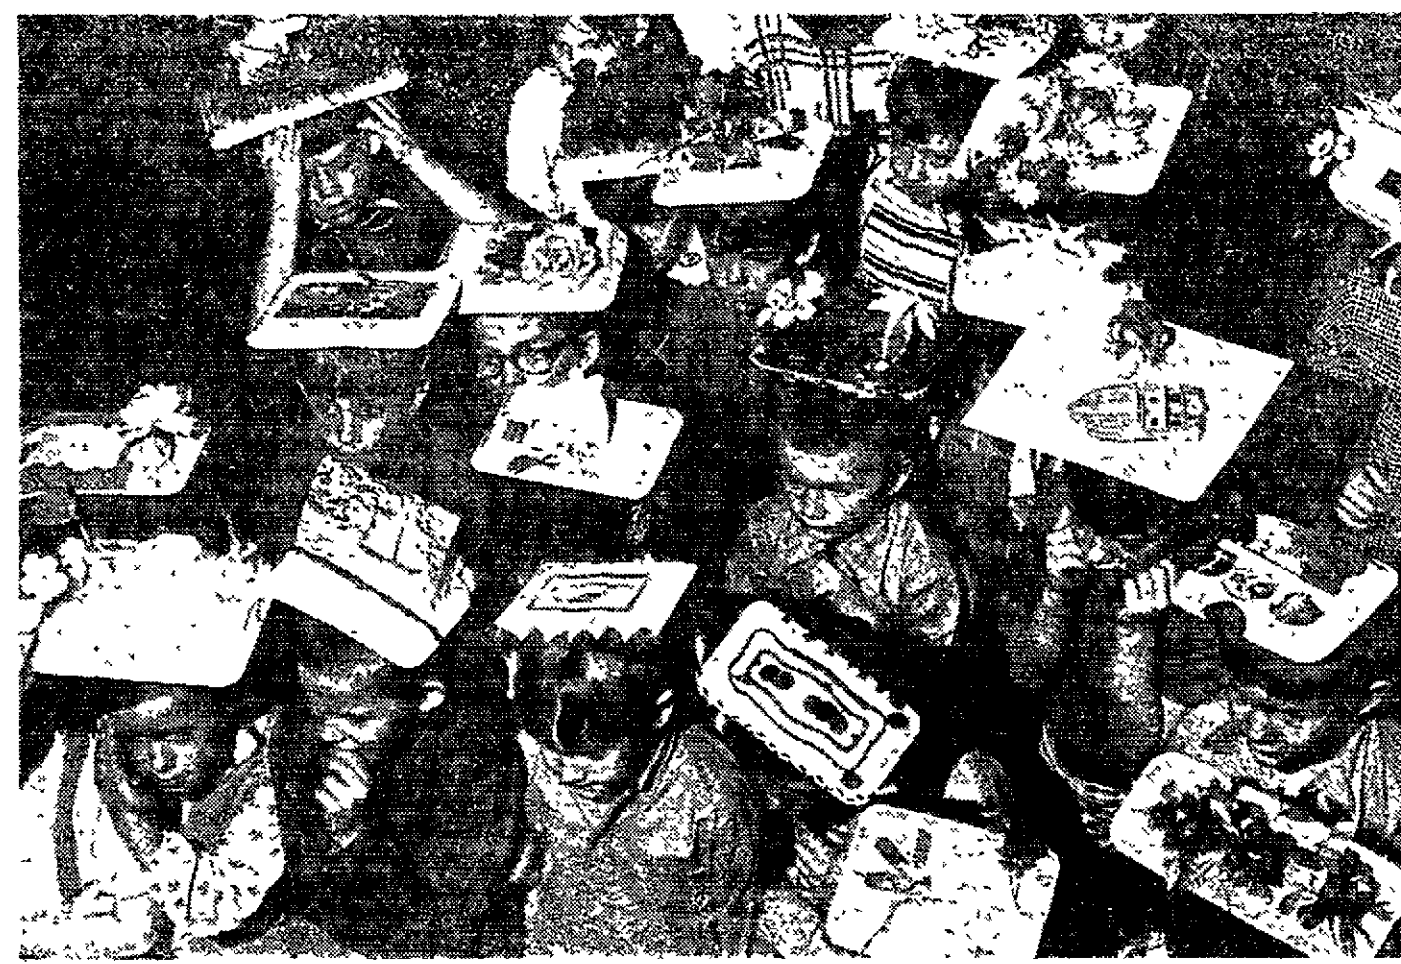

Others testified to the put-down of the general practitioner, beginning in medical school. They included Dr. Rahr, Dr. Harry Caskey, Clintonville, Dr. J. E. McKenna, Antigo, and Dr. H. D. Grotz, Sturgeon Bay.

Dr. Caskey said 25 contacts the past two years have produced one doctor for Clintonville.

'Funny Girl' Earns Applause at Menasha High

BY DINAH WALTER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MENASHA — "Funny Girl," with its comedy, its zest and its fun, didn't rain on anybody's parade Friday night. Rather, it came off very well, and drew enthusiastic applause at the end.

After weeks and weeks of preparation, the Menasha High School students put it all together for the one night stand. It was the school's fourth musical; this one was about Ziegfeld's Fanny Brice.

And Miss Brice came off strong. The Menasha director did well in casting for her character. If it could be said that the success of a show depended on one person, that one person would have been Becky Valitchka.

She had a strong voice, natural action, and being cast as the lead in a top musical didn't seem to shake her at all. From the start she seemed at ease and really took hold with her first song, "I'm the Greatest Star."

Miss Valitchka grasped the character very well, even the New York accent.

While one person can carry a show, one person isn't the show, and Miss Valitchka was backed up with some very fine young actors and actresses. There was the male lead, Nick Meyer, who played Miss Brice's husband, Nick Arnstein.

Meyer, who has been part of two other Menasha High musicals, played the playboy, gambling, and fun loving type, who fell in love with Fanny Brice, married her, and then, unable to match her success and money, ruined himself.

Meyer came across especially well in the duet with

Neenah to Enforce Law On Storing Junked Cars

NEENAH — In spring, when thoughts of some men are turning to romance, Neenah Building Inspector Donald Christensen is thinking of other things like starting to crack down on junked cars left along the streets or in back yards.

Christensen said Friday that he planned to start contacting property owners to have junkers moved to a salvage yard. "With the snow gone the junk cars become even more unsightly," he said.

If nothing is done after a personal contact, Christensen said, he sends a letter quoting the city ordinance which prohibits "partially dismantled, non-operating wrecked, junked or discarded vehicles to remain on property longer than 30 days."

Although there has been little court action on junked cars, some property owners have been brought into court and Outagamie County police said Kieffer was thrown from his 1964 auto when it left County Trunk about two miles southeast of here. The car burst into flames after the accident, they

Ramp Groundbreaking Set Monday

NEENAH — Groundbreaking ceremonies for Neenah's parking ramp will begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday and will include talks by city officials and music by a pep band.

The program will be held at Doly Avenue, between the city hall and the police station.

Funding for the ramp was realized last week when the City Council, in a special session, awarded contracts for the project totaling about $556,000 and arranged for 10-year loans.

Work is slated to begin on the 260-car structure on Thursday, with completion slated for early September. The total cost of the project is estimated at $620,000.

Opening the program Monday morning will be the Shattuck High School Pep Band with several tunes. Next will come the "Star Spangled Banner," and then remarks by the master of ceremonies, Mayor Roman Hauser.

Also on the program are John R. Galloway, president, Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce; Abbott Byfield, chairman of RACON; Dennis Bump, general chairman, Neenah downtown Business Division;

Four Cars Derailed At Oshkosh

OSHKOSH — Four cars of a southbound 80-car Soo Line freight train were derailed about 4:30 a.m. today near Marian Road here.

The two boxcars and two hoppers all contained potash fertilizer bound for Chicago on the main line. City police said barricades were erected around the box cars, which partially blocked the streets, to provide cautious one-lane traffic.

The two were rerailed about 8:15 a.m. with a diesel engine from Neenah. The hoppers still were on the right of way, just off the tracks this morning, but officials expected to have them removed by noon.

Michael R. Logan, Ford du Lac, assistant superintendent of the Soo Line, said a 150-ton wrecker from Stevens Point and a crane from Appleton had been summoned. The hoppers each carried about 60 tons of the fertilizer.

Logan said three other Soo freight trains were derailed this morning on the Chicago and North Western tracks between Fond du Lac and Appleton.

Menasha Projects Qualify For Aids

MENASHA — The park and recreation board will meet next week to finalize its plan for future park development projects after a board official found out this week that "everything that we wanted" could be funded under state and federal programs.

The official reported, after making the trip to Madison this week and speaking with two officials with the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR), that "75 per cent is possible for practically everything we do."

The board has prepared a plan calling for about half a million dollars of park land development and improvement projects through 1977. The plan

Home Building Increases; Total Construction Drops

NEENAH — Although this year's home building is ahead of 1970, total building is down and well short of the pace set two years ago.

According to the first quarter report, released today by the Neenah assessor's office, total building for the year is $403,023 compared to $466,012 a year ago.

For the first three months of 1970, permits have been issued for 26 new homes. This compares to 16 a year ago, but is 11 short of the 37 permits issued in 1969.

However, March showed some improvement over the same month a year ago, with the value of issued permits totaling $185,673, compared to about $131,000 in 1970.

Of the total $403,000 in building, new homes and duplexes comprise the Lion's share at about $374,300 for the first quarter. In 1970, the home building pace was only $187,500 of the total $466,000 worth of construction.

As was the case a year ago, the 6th ward is the most popular spot for home building. Of the 26 permits issued, 17 have been for that ward, with six going to the 1st ward and three more in the 2nd ward.

A year ago, nine of the 16 permits were for the sixth with one in the first and a half dozen in the second.

Proxmire Advocates Home Television of Pro Football Games

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire wants the government to ban blacking out home professional football games from television screens when stadiums are sold out.

Proxmire, himself a fan of the Green Bay Packers, told the Senate: "No Packer fan wants to watch the Eagles play the Redskins when the Packers are at home."

He introduced legislation requiring those who hold the television rights to away-from-home games, be required to televise sold-out home games.

Thursday, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., introduced a separate bill to ban closed-circuit telecasts of sports events to paying audiences except when the Federal Communications Commission determines broadcast of an event on home television is not commercially feasible.

He aimed criticism at the recent selling of the Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali fight to theater audiences around the country.

Threaten Home TV

He said that in his view the $20-million gross for that fight is likely to excite sports promoters to the extent that the Super Bowl football game, the World Series, the Kentucky Derby and basketball and hockey playoffs could disappear from free home television sets.

Proxmire predicted the same thing and gave several reasons for passing his own bill. "In the first place, the airwaves belong to the public and not to the pro football leagues," he said.

"Second, in most cities the local stadium has been built with public funds" or is otherwise publicly subsidized, he said.

"Yet the local citizen-taxpayer can neither get a ticket to a home game nor see it on television."

"Finally, it could increase television revenues for the pro teams."

76ers Hope to Overcome 3-1 Playoff Lag

Cunningham Notes Lakers Spurge in 1967-68 Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don't tell the Philadelphia 76ers you can't overcome a 3-1 deficit in a best-of-seven game series. They know from bitter experience that it can be accomplished.

"I remember when we lost to Boston after we went up 3-1," recalled Billy Cunningham, the 76er's all-star forward. "I had broken my wrist but I was traveling with the team and looking forward to sitting by the pool in Los Angeles. Before I knew it I was sitting home."

That was in the 1967-68 playoffs. The Boston Celtics with Bill Russell came back to eliminate the 76ers and went on to play the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association championship round.

Cunningham remembered the great collapse last Tuesday after the Baltimore Bullets defeated the 76ers and took a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern semifinal series.

"Who Can Know?" Cunningham said. "Injuries, you never know. Who can know?"

Cunningham certainly was correct about injuries. He collided with Baltimore's Gus Johnson in Thursday night's fifth game, won by the 76ers 104-103, keeping them alive in the series. He suffered chest contusions, but they won't keep him from today's sixth game as set and send it back to Baltimore Sunday for a seventh and deciding game.

The Philadelphia-Baltimore battle is the only Eastern Conference semifinal series left. The New York Knicks have already won their 4-1, over the Atlanta Hawks. The Western Conference battles continue Sunday with Los Angeles playing Chicago and Milwaukee taking on San Francisco. Los Angeles leads the series, 3-2, and Milwaukee is leading, 3-1.

The 76ers could ill afford to lose Cunningham. He has averaged 21.5 points and 13 rebounds per game in this series. Thursday night he scored 32, including 14 for 27 from the field. He had 20 rebounds in his backboard battle with Johnson and Wes Unseld. Trainer Al Domenico says if the chest area is bothersome before today's game he'll give Cunningham a shot of a pain killer.

Cunningham went through a light workout Friday with the rest of the 76ers.

Other members of the first team are Wausau's Bob Steif, Janesville Craig's Tim Paterick, Janesville Parker's Bob Luchsinger and Racine St. Catherine's Bill Letsch.

The voting was done by a panel of coaches.

Anderson Says Pittsburgh Is Best Team Reds Will Play; Bristol Eyes .500 Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here's what the managers are saying with the 1971 baseball season opening Monday:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Western Division

Sparky Anderson, Cincinnati Reds: "If we had a 100 percent Bobby Tolan and Lee May, I'd say no one could beat us. As it is, I'll make no predictions. However, I said last year after we lost the World Series that I felt we were the best team in baseball and I still feel that way. Baltimore isn't on my mind, though. The best team we'll play in 1971 is the Pittsburgh Pirates. They have no more talent than Baltimore has. They should win the Eastern Division easily."

Walt Alston, Los Angeles Dodgers: "I feel the Dodgers have improved considerably over last year but the question is, how much? This is the most versatile team I've ever had. I can name five or six men at every position. And we've added power. The thing to be concerned about is giving up too many runs."

In Sound Condition

Charlie Fox, San Francisco Giants: "We're in the toughest division in baseball, but with Juan Marichal back in sound condition we'll make a run at it. The Reds still are the champs. But the loss of Bobby Tolan in center and some sore pitching arms will hurt them. The addition of Richie Allen and Duke Sims puts some firepower in the Dodgers' attack. And the Astros, with their fine pitching, should be in it too."

Harry Walker, Houston Astros: "We think we have the best club to come out of Florida, better balance, depth and experience. Pitching will be the key but if our arms stay good we can be real tough. Los Angeles will be the tough club, along with Cincinnati, and the Giants could walk in anytime. In the other division, I like Chicago for better balance."

Preston Gomez, San Diego Padres: "We will win more games this year. We are stronger defensively and have more major league players on our squad. The pitching is improved and with Don Mason and Dave Campbell hitting well, we should have more strength in the top of the batting order."

5-Team Race

Lum Harris, Atlanta Braves: "I think this year they are going to know we are in the league again. There is a good possibility that there's going to be a five-team race again just like there was two years ago, and I don't think you can take San Diego for granted either. Cincinnati has some big players injured and that has to make a difference for them."

Eastern Division

Danny Murtaugh, Pittsburgh Pirates: "This is a better team at this point than we had last year. This should be a contending team. We learned from last year that you can never get too many sound pitching arms on your side. I'm going to open the season with the four incumbents from last year. The only thing different is that I probably won't go as long with one of my top four pitchers as I did last year."

Gil Hodges, New York Mets: "I expect the Eastern race to be a 3-4 team race. I count the Cards as the half because I'm not sure of their pitching. Injuries could be the key to the entire race. If either the Cubs, Mets or Cards lose a key player for any length of time it could wipe them out. I think Pittsburgh could suffer the loss of a big man like Clemente and still be deep enough to overcome it. We're a better team. We've cut down on our mistakes and tightened up our defense."

Sticks With Champions

Leo Durocher, Chicago Cubs: "I stick with the champions. When the Mets won, I picked them to repeat. Now that the other club (Pittsburgh) won, I'm sticking with them. The National League East could have a great race, and this club (the Cubs) is pretty good."

Red Schoendienst, St. Louis Cardinals: "The Pirates are the team to beat in 1971. The New York Mets and Chicago Cubs also will be contenders. At the moment there are a few ifs in our prospects. But if our ifs come through at shortstop, catching and in pitching we'll be all right."

Gene Mauch, Montreal Expos:

"Both races are going to be close. If someone stuck a gun up and demanded to know who I favor, I would have to go with Pittsburgh in the East and Cincinnati in the West. I said during the winter that Expos would make a run at 81, which is .500 baseball, and I still feel that way. I think we've improved our club."

Frank Lucchesi, Philadelphia Phillies: "We won 73 games last year. 10 more than the year before, and I think we can win at least 10 more this season. I realize people say we have pitching problems, but I'm optimistic that our pitchers will do the job. We'll be in the race all the way."

American League

Western Division

Bill Rigney, Minnesota Twins: "Winning the West was tough last year and it's going to be even tougher this year. California seems to have conceded itself the championship already. And Oakland thinks it is better. Last year I felt I was managing the best club I've ever had and now I feel this year's is the best. I've always felt with this team that if it got any kind of pitching it could win. It would be a shame if that talent would go to waste because we didn't have the pitching."

"A Good Race"

Dick Williams, Oakland A's: "It's going to be a good race. Minnesota, California and Oakland—but not in that order. I see us finishing first. I'm going to keep a good eye on our bullpen, but I'm satisfied with our bench. We have to avoid major injuries, though. Everyone is saying Minnesota is a year older but they have a good ball club and the Angels have helped themselves tremendously, although you don't know the quality of their bullpen."

Lefty Phillips, California Angels: "Oakland, Minnesota or the Angels could take it. On paper, I believe the A's look like the best team but you have to respect the Twins because of their power balance. If we play to our capabilities I think we can win it. I've said that all spring and I'll say it again. The team with the best pitching and the best health will prevail. The big thing is to keep free of injuries."

Chuck Tanner, Chicago White Sox: "Our division looks pretty well balanced. Minnesota may be hurting after losing three pitchers. Oakland should be strong and California made a lot of changes which may help. Our club has improved a lot, especially in speed, and we hope our extensive rebuilding will produce a much better showing."

Have Improved

Bob Lemon, Kansas City Royals: "I think Minnesota will have trouble winning. Oakland and California have improved and I think the other three are better too. Kansas City is shooting for 81 victories. We were 16 under that last year but if you look back and see what we did against New York and Baltimore you can see where we can pick up ground. In the East, Baltimore still is the one to beat."

Dave Bristol, Milwaukee Brewers:

"We think we are a much better club than last year at this time, if for no other reason than we've got fellows with a season under their belts. But our goal is .500 and it will take pitching to do it. Right now our staff is pitching well."

Eastern Division

Earl Weaver, Baltimore Orioles: "If we play the game we've played the past two years, we should win. If shortstop Mark Belanger comes up to .250, well, that's improvement over the last year, so maybe we'll be ever better."

Eddie Kasko, Boston Red Sox: "I think we have a better balanced ball club with more enthusiasm. Getting a catcher like Duane Josephson has given the team a big lift. When he walked into the clubhouse you could sense it. It wasn't a spark, it was more like a forest fire. I think we'll be much better all-around this year."

Ralph Houk, New York Yankees: "Both Boston and Detroit helped themselves with late deals. Detroit needed pitching and if Dean Chance has anything left, he'll make them stronger. Boston moves up in my book now that they have a catcher. We didn't really stand pat. We just would not deal off our young talent. I think we're stronger than last year because of the kids getting a year's experience and I'd like to hope we can win 100 games. I'm optimistic about our chances."

Billy Martin, Detroit Tigers: "This is going to be a flexible ball club and every man will be part of the team. No one will be left out of anything. Baltimore is the team to beat. We'll have to give them everything we've got to beat them—and that's what we plan to do. We've got a club here that's hungry and when you have a club that's hungry you have something."

Alvin Dark, Cleveland Indians: "If we get some pitching, we could be a contending ball club. As for the others, I never talk about anybody else's team."

Ted Williams, Washington Senators: "We're in the toughest division in baseball and all the team above us last year have improved. We have a chance to do better than last year. The big thing is defense. We'll only be as good as Mr. (shortstop Toby) Harrah and Mr. (third baseman Joe) Foy. Our outfield is better than last year and in the past years I only had six or seven pitchers but this year I had 13 good pitchers and had to wait until the last minute to cut down to 10."

Charges and Counter Charges

Committee Will Probe Basketball Dissension at St. Norbert

A 6-member ad hoc fact finding committee has been formed to investigate the variety basketball situation at St. Norbert College, President Robert E. Christin has announced.

The committee will investigate written and verbal charges and counter charges between some members of the basketball team and coach Ronnie Kosnar, Christin said.

"All too often in this kind of situation, rumor, hearsay, and personal antagonism replace fact and rational thought. The process has begun here and I want to stop it before it goes any further," the president said.

The ad hoc committee will interview everyone connected with the basketball situation and report its facts, without recommendations, directly to Christin and the athletic committee.

The interviews will be conducted in strict confidence and there will be no statements issued to the press by anyone until the final report has been received, Christin said.

The dissension first surfaced after the 1969-70 season in which the Green Knights finished 15-9. At that time, all of the players on the squad signed a petition asking for changes in the basketball program. Requested changes included fewer long road trips and better travel and meal arrangements on trips.

'We Are Off to an Excellent Start,' Says Devine After Meeting Squad

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service
ARLINGTON, Tex. — "I made no attempt whatsoever to be anything but myself . . . and I am convinced this will pay off in the long run."

Dan Devine, relaxing at a late evening press conference, was describing his historic first meeting with the 1971 Packers, held here Friday night as a prelude to a 2-day spring camp at the University of Texas-Arlington.

Excellent Start

"If there was a necessity for getting off to a roaring start," he explained, "I wasn't aware of it. I am more concerned that the players first find out what I am like, how I feel about my coaching staff and how I feel about coaching the Green Bay Packers. I am more concerned about winning football games next fall."

Although he had deliberately adopted a low-key approach to welcoming an 85-man squad in a meeting room at the sprawling Cibola Motel, Devine said, "I feel that we are off to an excellent start . . . I am not sure what that means, except just that."

Nothing to Prove

Pronouncing himself "very pleased and surprised with the squad's attitude," Devine asserted, "this football team is as attentive as any team I have ever coached. There were 80 guys in the room and there wasn't any restlessness. And the meeting was quite a long one."

Asked if he had been nervous about his Packer debut, considering he was formally stepping up to the pro ranks after 23 years as a high school and college coach, he replied, "not as much as I would have been five years ago . . . or 10 or 15 years ago."

"Everything is important, of course. I could have been weeks preparing a speech and practicing in front of a mirror. But I just made some notes this afternoon and during dinner, then talked off the top of my head . . . I think it's more important that the squad find out a little bit about what I am like."

"I don't feel I have anything to prove," said Devine, 46-year-old coaching veteran who was one of the nation's most successful strategists during a 13-year career at the University of Missouri before coming to the Packers. "I wasn't trying to sell me, or my system."

In Love With Team

A faint smile playing about his mouth, he added significantly, "I have an idea I was the only man in the room with a 5-year contract."

Devine was quick to note, "I like these guys. I like them all. One of my weaknesses is that I fall in love with my football teams. And you shouldn't do that — especially in this case, where you have to trade players or replace them, or retire them."

The dapper Minnesotan, impeccably casual in tan slacks, a gold shirt and a gold sweater with a Missouri Tiger emblazoned over the left pocket, conceded his Packer baptism had been "a traumatic experience to a degree. But as it went on, at times I forgot where I was. It was the same old hash."

"I told them it has been 13 years since I have talked to a completely new group (this first year at Missouri), and this had to be a different experience of course."

Devine, who this morning put the Packers through their annual running tests at UTA stadium, expressed satisfaction with the physical condition of his athletes.

"To be honest with you, the squad looked better than I thought they would," he said. "Some of the guys look a little heavy, but not too bad."

Minimum of Grips

"Some of the players also made considerable sacrifice to get here, with a minimum of grips. At least, I haven't heard of any although maybe I would be the last to hear . . . but this all is very encouraging."

Devine said he also was pleased to learn some of the players who were excused from the running tests for medical reasons had offered to waive their immunity.

"This has been a boost to my morale," he reported, identifying offensive tackle Francis Peay as one volunteer. "Peay just had sinus surgery in January and hasn't had a chance to work out to get into shape so the team physician told him he could sit out. But he wants to run . . . I haven't decided what I'll do about that."

Itemizing the agenda for Friday night's kickoff meeting, Devine revealed, "I introduced all the coaches, the trainer and other personnel, then talked about the rules we are going to have while we are here, which will be different than the ones we will have during the regular season."

"I also told them things that I feel they should know about me and my feelings about my coaching staff. Most coaches vary a little about how they feel about their staffs . . . We then took a break before coming back in to take a look at the 1970 Packer highlights film, which ended the meeting."

No Questions

Had the players ventured any questions? "As a matter of fact, it was the first time in a long time that I haven't asked if there were any questions at an open team meeting. I thought about it, but I thought 'oh' why get into that?" I did say, however, that anyone with any questions could come to my room and discuss them, but no one has."

Benevolent skies and temperatures in the 70s were forecast for today's morning and afternoon workouts following a bright, sunny Friday in the 60s.

Even without balmy weather, Devine indicated he would have been happy with the camp's results. "This meeting tonight was worth coming here for alone," he said. "Just with what we've got accomplished."

"At best," Devine volunteered, "this is going to be a horribly disorganized deal. But the good is going to outweigh the bad. If we get into some bad habits here, we'll just have to unlearn them."

Cubs Favored to Win Division Reds, Orioles Are AP Pennant Picks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Baltimore's defending world champions and the power-packed Cincinnati Reds were picked today as repeat pennant winners in the annual Associated Press preseason baseball poll.

The Orioles and Minnesota Twins were the choices to win American League division titles again while the Reds and Chicago Cubs topped the National League division voting in a ballot of 274 sportswriters and sports casters across the country.

Baltimore received 233 first-place votes in the AL East balloting to just 20 for the runner-up New York Yankees. Minnesota was a razor-thin choice in the West, drawing 98 votes to 97 for the California Angels.

The panel picked the Orioles over the Twins for the pennant by a whopping 172-27 margin.

In the National League balloting, 146 selectors picked Cincinnati to take the West title again and 107 picked the Los Angeles Dodgers for first place. The Cubs were the picks in the East with 110 first-place votes to 95 for Pittsburgh's division defenders.

The Reds were the choice of 87 panelists to win the NL pennant. Los Angeles received 80 votes, the Cubs 41.

On a points basis, the NL East shaped up as the closest division race, with the Cubs, Pirates, New York Mets and St. Louis Cardinals all receiving solid support. Minnesota, California and Oakland were just 210 points apart in the AL West voting.

The Chicago White Sox, who finished in the AL West cellar last season with the worst record in the majors, were picked by eight voters to win the division title and by one to capture the pennant.

All 24 clubs received at least one first-place nomination in the division balloting. Philadelphia, Montreal, San Francisco, Houston and San Diego, in the National League, and Washington, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Kansas City in the American, were shut out in the pennant picks.

Seals Lose Home Finale

Accuracy in 1st Period Aids 7-2 Vancouver Win

OAKLAND (AP) — The California Golden Seals have lost their last home game of the season, a 7-2 defeat at the hands of Vancouver.

The Seals, in last place in the National Hockey League West, wind up season play tonight in Los Angeles trying for their first win this year on the King's home ice.

California outshot Vancouver 35-28 in losing the only NHL game scheduled Friday night. The Canucks capitalized on fewer tries, scoring on three of seven first period attempts.

Wayne Maki got his 25th goal of the season as the Canucks opened fire at 8:51 of the first period. Rosaire Paement waited eight seconds to add Vancouver's second goal, his 33rd.

Orland Kurtenbach got two goals and two assists to lead Canuck scoring. Dan Johnson, Ted Taylor and Murray Hall each added a goal.

Dick Redmond got California's opening goal on a first period power play. The Seals' other goal was by Gary Crosteau.

Dinner Set April 19 Crowe to Speak at All-Fox Cities Fete

The all-Fox Cities football and basketball teams, as selected by the Post-Crescent sports department, will be honored at the dinner. Players will receive awards both from the Jaycees and the Post-Crescent.

Tickets for the dinner will soon be available at sport shops and other business establishments in the Fox Cities, as well as from Little Chute JC members.

Barber, Brown Share Lead Rain Mars Greensboro Open

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Claude Harmon Jr. stood in the locker room, drenched to the skin, in his mod-style clothes, including flower-pattern pants with roses and lilies and such.

"It rained so much," he said, "glancing down at his trousers, 'my pants started to grow.'"

The comment was typical of the wry humor and angry mutterings voiced by golf's touring pros Friday after battling numbing cold and chill rains that started as morning drizzle and developed into heavy showers.

Veterans Pete Brown and Miller Barber, neither very happy, were early starters in the second round of the $190,000 Greater Greensboro Open, just beat the rains and shared the lead going into today's third round.

Brown, 36, one of the few blacks on the pro tour, had a 69 for 137 and was tied at that figure with Barber, who shot 70.

They were five-under-par on the water-logged, 7,034 yard, par 71 Sedgefield country club had nine birdies and two bogeys.

South African Gary Player, leader of the last two four events and the defending champion here, had a 70 for 145. Bill Casper, the Masters titleholder, just made the cut for the final two rounds with a 71 for 146, cut off score.

Howard Belts Another Tape-Measure Shot Blair Hits 'Strange' Homer

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ron Swoboda hit a home run Friday in a strange uniform and Paul Blair hit one from a strange side of the plate while Frank Howard hit another routine 460-footer.

Swoboda, the ex-New York Met, drilled his first circuit shot in his new Montreal getup, one of four Expo homers in an 18-5 rout of Pittsburgh's 'B' team. Rusty Staub hit two homers and John Boccabella the other as the Expos battered Bob Moose for nine runs in seven innings.

Swoboda also hit a 380-foot sacrifice fly that observers said would have been long gone in Montreal's Jerry Park.

A Switch Hitter

Meanwhile, Swoboda's ex-Met teammates were battered by the Baltimore Orioles 12-2. The Birds tagged relievers Jim McAndrew, Charlie Williams and Ron Taylor for 10 runs in the last three innings with Blair, now a switch hitter, getting his first as a left-handed batter, a three-run shot over the center field fence in the ninth. Merv Rettenmund homered off loser Tom Seaver and Clay Dalrymple also connected for Baltimore.

Howard, who hit two monstrous homers Thursday, unloaded over a 70-foot-high fence 380 feet from the plate but the Atlanta Braves outslugged Washington 10-6. Mike Epstein and Dick Billings also homered for the Senators while Sonny Jackson paced the Braves' 17-1 hit attack with four safeties.

Pittsburgh's main squad got five-hit pitching from Nelson Briles, Bob Veale and Jim Nelson and blanked the Cincinnati Reds 12-0. Richie Hebner hit a pair of homers and drove in six runs while Vic Davalillo and Bob Robertson also homered.

The Chicago White Sox ripped Ferguson Jenkins of the crosstown Cubs for nine runs and 10 hits in six innings and snapped the Cubs' seven-game winning streak 9-2.

Rick Monday hit his first home run ever off Sam McDowell as the Oakland A's 4-1 and the Astros shaded the Twins 5-3. That left the Astros plus three, the Twins plus one and the Yankees minus four runs, that is.

Jim Spencer drove in two runs in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the California Angels a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Angels trailed 3-2 going into their half of the inning but Dodger pitcher Pete Mikkelsen walked one man and Ken McMullen singled with two out setting the scene for Spencer.

$1.5 Million Contract Wicks Signs With Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sidney Wicks of UCLA signed a five-year contract Friday with the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association.

The terms of the contract were not disclosed but it was believed to be for $1.5 million.

"The Trail Blazers offered more money. That's why I came here," the 6-foot-9 Wicks told a news conference after the signing.

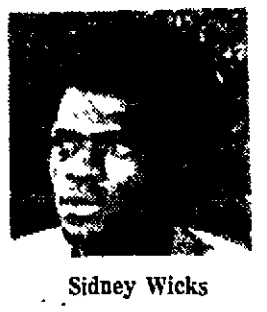

Was the difference strictly dollars?

"I would have to say yes," said the All-America who helped UCLA to its fifth consecutive NCAA basketball championship last weekend.

Harry Glickman, executive vice president of the Blazers, would say only that the contract would give Wicks financial security.

Wicks had been reported to be seeking between $1.5 million and $2 million.

The Blazers picked Wicks Monday in the NBA college draft. Wicks said he had given definite consideration to the Texas Chapparals of the American Basketball Association, who also drafted him and offered him a $2.3 million contract.

Chuter Track Outlook Good

LITTLE CHUTE — Eleven lettermen and a varsity turnout of 42 candidates, one of the largest in history, have given Coach Lyle Bowers of the St. John High School track team an optimistic outlook for the coming season.

Out of the 11 lettermen, four are holders of individual school records and three were members of the mile relay team which also holds the school mark.

One of the disadvantages for the St. John cindermen is that there is no local track available for workouts. At the present time, drills are held in the school gym or on sidewalks around the school building. The municipal athletic field will be used after the ground is dry, but there is no track layout there.

Bowers is hoping to line up enough practice meets at other schools in the area to give his thinclads a chance to run on cinder or permanent surfaces.

Meets Pennings

St. John opens its dual meet season April 15 at DePere Abbot Pennings.

Senior lettermen returning for the Chuters include Don Brittnacher, mile and 2-mile; Jeff Driessen, mile and mile relay; Jeff Jansen, sprints, long jump and mile relay; Tom Jansen, shot put and discus; Paul Van Groll, shot put and discus and Joe Wegand, 880 relay and mile relay.

Junior monogram winners returning are Marv Jansen, high jump and 880; Ken Lamers, pole vault; Frank Weigert, mile and 2-mile and Jim Vander Sanden, 2-mile. Sophomore Jeff Hietpas earned a letter as a freshman and returns for the sprints and 880 relay.

Promising newcomers for St. John include: Dave Van Lieshout, high jump and hurdles; Jerry Farrell, distances; Randy Spierings, distances; Steve Siebers, sprints and long jump; Bob Zuleger, sprints and high jump and Mark Hammen, hurdles and weights.

Teams With Fein Oshkosh's Neveau Shares National Title

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — (Calif.) and Dave Stewart of San Francisco, who won 21-13, 21-15 Friday to take their first national open doubles crown in the United States Handball Association Tournament.

Simie Fein of Milwaukee and Ray Neveau of Oshkosh defeated Fred Lewis of Miami Beach and Steve Lott of New York 21-11, 3-21 and 21-15 in the best two of three matches for the title.

In the masters doubles event, Arnold Aguilar, and Irv Simon, both of Los Angeles, defeated Gus Lewis and Bud Christian, both of Chicago, 21-12, 21-10.

The Golden Masters title for players over 50 was taken by Jack Gordon of Laguna Beach.

Professional Basketball Bantamweight Champ

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mexico City's Ruben Olivares reigned as the recrowned bantamweight champion of the world today—but the 24-year-old puncher has a problem.

He has just about slugged himself out of opponents in the 118-pound division.

The kid who has been called the guy with the "happy face" regained the title in 15 rounds Friday night from his fellow countryman, Chucho Castillo, who dethroned him on a badly slashed eye last October in the 14th round of what was their second encounter.

There was no cut eye and no pounds.

Referee John Thomas scored it 9-4. Judge Larry Rozadilla 12-4, and Judge Chuck Hassett 10-3. Ringside Boxing writers were not so generous. The Associated Press called it 12-1.

Scoring here is one to five, points for the winner of the round, none to the loser and none for an even round.

Both fighters weighed 117

Waupaca Man Pleads Guilty To Burglaries

14 Charges Brought; Pre-Sentence Check Ordered by Judge

WAUPACA — George Viney, 19, route 4, Waupaca, pleaded guilty Friday when he appeared before Judge Nathan Wieser in county court branch 2, on charges of eight burglaries, four counts of grand larceny and two counts of petty larceny.

Judge Wieser ordered a pre-sentence investigation and set sentencing for 11 a.m., April 19. The youth is being held in the Waupaca County Jail where he was sent after his arraignment March 29. At that time bond was set at $1,000 for each felony and $500 for each misdemeanor, or a total of $12,500. Atty. Edward J. Hart was appointed by the court to represent Viney.

Viney was charged after a lengthy investigation by the Sheriff's Department, in the burglarizing of the Farmsite Implement, Inc., Route 1, Waupaca; Kragh's Garage, King; Clumppner's Garage, Ogdensburg; Manawa Coop, Manawa; Waupaca County Motors, Manawa; Mengert's Arco Station Manawa; and the Wolf River Oil Co.

Rubinstein: More Than a Pianist

OSHKOSH — When Arthur Rubinstein appears, it is less a concert than an event. That the pianist will be brilliant at the Steinway is a foregone conclusion.

In a Town and Gown special at Civic Auditorium here Thursday night, the maestro was so sparkingly pure and perfect, the jammed house reacted with five standing ovations, certainly a Town and Gown record.

Rubinstein, a man about whom every superlative has been applied — and accurately — dominates a hall just as he does the piano. His nearly three-quarters of a century concert experience is evident in every note. From the sober grandeur of Beethoven's Sonata in F Minor, Op. 57 ("Appassionata"), which opened the event, through three charming Chopin pieces, including the incredibly light touch of Nocturne in F sharp Major, Op. 15, and on to beautifully fluent Debussy, Alexis E. Chabrier and Enrique Granados, finally reaching subtle heights of lightness in Franz Liszt's Mephisto Waltz, the diminutive genius stood taller than any pianist who has played Town and Gown, including Van Cliburn.

There were three encores — Chopin's Waltz, Op. 64, No. 2, and an etude, as well as a spectacularly dexterous Villa-

Lobos piece — and if the estimated 1,650 people jammed into the auditorium had had their way, he might have done several more.

The futility of words trying to describe Rubinstein's playing leads me to apply a humorous line Allan Sherman used describing Vladimir Horowitz: "He plays piano good the way a real piano player should." Before Thursday night, I didn't realize exactly how "good" piano playing could or should be.

Earlier in the day, Rubinstein and his wife, the former Aniela Mlynarski (daughter of a famous Polish conductor), accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Casimir Krance of Oshkosh, went to an empty Civic Auditorium to set up for the concert. As Rubinstein strode on stage and shook hands with me, my first impression was one of surprise at his smallness. The 82-year-old musician, despite obvious agility and a glint in his eyes, looks almost fragile, though not frail. It is deceptive, because in a flash you realize the man's strength, which has nothing to do with size or age.

Rubinstein was there to choose a piano and arrange the lighting. Two Steinways stood on a dimly-lit stage. Rubinstein strode to the one nearest the audience. He adjusted the seat upward, sat down and immediately began playing. He was asked to play the second Steinway, which happened to be a house piano. The first was a rental from Milwaukee. Rubinstein liked the sound of the house instrument but his wife, seated about midway back in the hall, expressed a firm opinion that the rental piano was best. So, the maestro shrugged and accepted the verdict. Interspersed was some dialogue in Polish between the Rubins and the Krances, the nature of which could not be guessed.

The house piano was rolled off stage, but Rubinstein said he wanted its bench. The bench needed tightening and a piano tuner from Milwaukee assured the artist it would be done, but not until Rubinstein speculated that the looseness was caused by people turning one adjusted knob, instead of both at once. The tuner mentioned, off-hand, that the humidity of this past winter was a more likely cause, but Rubinstein did not press the matter. He was more concerned with lighting.

He refused to allow any spotlight, however dimmed, to shine in his face. "I can't stand it. It bothers my eyes." He insisted that house lights be kept at half power so he could see the audience and it could read the program notes. At the time, he probably didn't know that bleachers on the stage would allow him to see the crowd at closer hand than usual.

It was interesting that Rubinstein seemed more concerned with the lighting than with which piano he used. He appeared satisfied that both instruments were of outstanding quality, although his wife disagreed. His one concern was that the tuner, who was waxing the rental machine when Rubinstein appeared, did not clean the keys. He didn't want wax on them.

As soon as everything was set up, he donned coat and brimmed hat and the party was off.

Robert Brismaster, of Town and Gown, later breathed a sigh of relief over Rubinstein's choice of piano. Brismaster recalled that when Cliburn appeared, he chose the house Steinway over a rental. If Rubinstein had done the same, Brismaster said, it would be the last time they rented an instrument for a famous artist.

Rubinstein's first name has always been a problem. Music buffs get insensed when they see it spelled Arthur rather than Artur. Actually, Rubinstein prefers it Arthur. Although the name varies from Arturo to Artur to Arthur, depending on the country, Mrs. Rubinstein pointed out that her husband signs his checks Arthur.

Arthur Rubinstein tests a piano before his concert Thursday night at the Oshkosh Civic Auditorium.

An Explanation of Lucey's Budget

James Morgan, former state revenue secretary, explained the Gov. Patrick Lucey's 1971-73 budget proposal Thursday but expressed only one opinion on it — the Legislature will not accept it without lengthy debate and eventual compromise.

Morgan, now vice president in charge of research for the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, also told Appleton community and business leaders at an Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce luncheon that there will be no simple solutions to problems in this very technical, highly complex society.

Morgan

He reviewed Lucey's proposals, including the UW-State Universities merger and tax changes, with the group, attempting to clarify what the governor is seeking and the probable effects.

Morgan, secretary from 1965 to 1970, said he wasn't going to give opinions but would leave it to the public to decide after it had the facts. The alliance is a citizen-sponsored government research organization and not a lobby, he said.

Biennial Ritual

Morgan said that the budget proposal will go through the biennial "ritual" of eventual rejection by the legislature.

Statements, Testimony in Case Conflict

Discrepancies Noted In Burglary Hearing; Witness Threatened

A Menasha woman, a key state witness at a preliminary hearing in a burglary case, broke into sobs on the witness stand Thursday and said she had been threatened to "be careful" how she testified.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued the hearing of Howard Duke, 50, route 1, Nashotah. Duke is charged with the Sept. 14, 1969, burglary of the George Langenhuisen home, 368 Schindler St., Kimberly. The house was under construction at the time.

Defense and prosecuting attorneys will file briefs supporting their contentions in the case over the next two weeks.

The woman's testimony, and that of Jerome Baer, 35, refuted statements they previously gave police surrounding events on the night of Sept. 14, 1969. Baer, convicted last year of the Kimberly burglary, was sentenced to seven years in the State Prison last Nov. 19 on 21 felony counts.

Implicated Duke
On March 8, the woman gave a signed statement to authorities implicating Duke in the Kimberly house burglary. Thursday she testified that she has since received two anonymous phone calls warning her to be careful what she and Baer said under oath.

She broke down recalling the threats. On repeated questioning by Assistant Dist. Atty. R. Thomas Cane, the woman said she didn't remember the events of Sept. 14. She had been drinking heavily that day, she said.

About the statement she commented, "It was true at the time but I'm not sure if it's true enough to see a man go to jail for."

Baer, who had given authorities two signed statements implicating Duke, took the stand. He testified he gave the first statement to authorities because he was under "mental pressure." He was not sure if that statement and the second one, given Feb. 23, were correct.

No Personal Threats
Cane asked Baer if the woman had told him of the threats. Baer, sobbing, answered no. He testified that he had not been threatened personally. Cane took the witness stand himself and testified that the woman had given her statements in his presence and that she had sworn they were true. He rested the case.

He moved to have the three statements introduced as substantive evidence, replacing the verbal testimony of Baer and the woman. The process is known as impeaching a witness, in this case two state's witnesses, and its legality is unclear.

The defense attorney objected, saying it is "very clear that there is not sufficient evidence for a bindover." He blasted the verbal testimony and information contained in the written statements as "totally in conflict, diametrically opposed."

Schaefer, unsure as to the legal questions involved, asked Cane and the defense attorney to submit their positions in writing. He gave Cane until Tuesday. The defense attorney must answer the state's positions by April 12.

Duke has posted 10 per cent of a $1,500 bond.

Diocesan Recital Sunday Afternoon

An honors recital for selected students from the music studios of schools in the Green Bay Diocese will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 4, in the auditorium of St. Mary School, Appleton.

The recital is the culminating activity of the annual hike would actually represent about 25 per cent, Morgan said.

This would produce an estimated $39.2 million, he said.

Morgan said both proposals would bring on a legislative fight over policy questions, which incidentally are more numerous this year than ever before.

There are arguments of the progressive taxation versus the fear of higher income taxes in an already highly ranked state for income taxes and of the adverse effects on industry here or industry which might consider coming into Wisconsin.

He said taxes rank sixth or seventh in business considerations but businessmen, just like residents, become emotional over tax hikes. He noted the corporate tax hike would provide general tax relief.

Morgan said that Lucey has spoken strongly about his desire for the UW-State Universities merger but indicated he would compromise on the tax proposals.

Welfare Changes
The governor's two major ideas on welfare changes, he said, are to restore payments to aid to dependent children where fathers are unemployed and to children 18 to 21.

There also would be an emphasis for county treatment in mental health clinics, including drugs users and alcoholics, instead of the county being only a boarder of such people. State aid would hinge more on treatment, he said.

On local government organization, Morgan called for a more regional approach because pollution, highways needs and other problems don't stop at municipal or county boundaries. A stronger county may be the result, he said.

Tests Ordered in Brewery Death

Laboratory tests will be conducted to determine the cause of death of a 43-year-old brewery worker who was dead on arrival Friday morning at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Robert J. Hauser, route 2, Hilbert, was found in seven inches of liquid at 9:20 a.m. Friday by the brewmaster at the George Walter Brewing Co., 210 S. Walnut St.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said an autopsy performed on Hauser failed to disclose the cause of death. Funeral arrangements are being handled through the Kapitzke Funeral Home in Hilbert.

BUS SERVICE
Who Needs It?

The working poor, who might be on welfare without buses to get to their jobs. The hard core, who can't even begin to work without bus service. Students. The aged and infirm. Mothers in families which don't own a second car.

Commuters, who would rather leave the driving to somebody else. Traffic engineers, who need buses to help carry the rush hour traffic load. Merchants, because about one in four shoppers comes downtown by bus.
